

Strong Opposition At Hearing For La Follette Tax Program

BURDEN WOULD BE EXCESSIVE, SENATE TOLD

Proponents Point to Need for Relief in Larger Communities

Madison — (P) — Representatives of Wisconsin's industries told the state senate yesterday why, in their opinion the $17,000,000 taxation program which Governor La Follette recommended for unemployment relief should not be enacted into law by the special session of the legislature.

Their appeals were based on the argument that the heavy income surtaxes proposed by the governor will affect a class of people who cannot economically afford to be further burdened and that there is no need for the expensive program undertaken by the administration.

One hundred thirty-four persons, the majority of whom did not speak, registered with the senate their disapproval of the program.

The opponents of the bill, introduced by Senator Leonard Foss, Milwaukee, to give legal effect to the governor's plans, had their chance to speak after the earlier part of the session, in which the senate sat as a committee of the whole, had been devoted to proponents of the Foss bill.

Senator Foss, backed by Milwaukee labor leaders and the Socialist mayor of Racine, W. J. Svoboda, declared that the thousands of unemployed persons in Wisconsin are entitled to receive aid from a "public community chest," and that the money should come from those who have incomes above the subsistence level.

Insist on Home Rule
Aside from the state's manufacturers who opposed the measure, were others who urged its defeat on the ground that its provisions for distributing state aid to localities would deprive local units of the right of home rule.

Max Babb, of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Louis A. Lecher, Milwaukee income tax expert; Fred H. Clausen, Horicon manufacturer and member of the interim committee on unemployment; Ernest F. Pahl, Milwaukee, former assemblyman; C. E. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press; W. R. Kavalke, chairman of the Sheboygan Association of Commerce, and Judge Fred V. Heinemann, Outagamie county, spoke against the bill.

Among the proponents of the measure, besides Senator Foss, were J. J. Handley and Henry Ohi, Jr., of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor; Maud McCreary, representative of Milwaukee workers; J. F. Drederick, of the Milwaukee Macmillans; and Herman Seida, of the Milwaukee Federated Trades council.

A. J. Altmeier, executive secretary of the interim committee on unemployment, Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell and E. G. Donald, secretary of the state board of normal regents, outlined committee work they had done in connection with the unemployment program.

OTHER ESTIMATES
Mr. Clausen was one of the two members of the interim legislative committee who prepared a minority report which cut in half the amount of appropriations of state aid as recommended by the committee majority. The majority proposed $8,000,000 and the minority $4,000,000. Clausen contrasted these figures with the administration proposal of $17,000,000.

Clausen said that he gained the impression from local officials that what they wanted was only enough to carry the relief load that could not be placed on general property.

"Conditions are not as complicated and severe as this bill points out," he said.

He attacked the statement in the governor's message to the legislature in which the latter said "the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer" as an indication that "the tax burden" is too heavy on the state.

Referring to the income tax provisions of the Foss bill making surtax levies of one to 20 per cent on incomes of $1,000 to $100,000 after exemptions, Clausen said:

"The function of taxation is not

"Bluebeard" Murder Trial Opens

NAMES SUGGESTED FOR WARD SCHOOL

Parent-teacher Association to Select Name at Next Meeting

Among the names suggested for First Ward school by the project committee of First Ward Parent-Teachers' association at the monthly meeting Monday night were those of two local educators, Samuel to confiscate wealth. It never was and never will be."

Charles Politics
He also charged that administration or relief funds by the unemployment relief commission was largely political and said the funds "should be turned to local control and not to the chairman of the state Republican committee." He referred to Herman L. Ekern, head of the unemployment legislation should not be considered "on the basis of emotional appeal."

He said he resented insinuations made by other speakers against local community drives for relief purposes.

Babb declared that the governor's taxation program is a "punitive tax for social purposes."

"You should look to the effect on industries that are carrying on local charity work and doing a lot of good, to the end that you will pass constructive legislation," he said.

Heinemann's Attitude
Mr. Broughton said that the administrative features of the Foss bill would mean depriving local units of control of their own relief expenditures, and Judge Heinemann said he did not want the state to step in and "place the red stamp of pauperism" on respectable citizens of his community.

The other side of the picture was presented by the representatives of the Milwaukee labor organizations and other speakers who favored the bill.

Miss McCreary said she had come in personal contact with many cases of needy workers and outlined a picture of suffering among those unable to obtain jobs. She said that employers frequently had forced their workers to contribute to community chest campaigns whether they were able to give or not.

She said the only way of obtaining an equitable contribution from everyone according to his means was the income tax plan proposed in the Foss bill.

Referring to the income tax provisions of the Foss bill making surtax levies of one to 20 per cent on incomes of $1,000 to $100,000 after exemptions, Clausen said:

HOUSE IS BUILT IN 15 SECONDS IN POLLACK PLAY

"House Beautiful" to Be Presented Here Friday Evening

Distinct evidences of the machine age will be seen in Channing Pollack's unique play, "House Beautiful," Friday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel when a house is built upon the stage in 15 seconds and 21 scenes change in a darkness that is noiseless except for the constant tick of a clock to denote the swift passage of time.

The action of the play, being presented by Crosby Gaige and his New York cast, occurs in one room which continually changes through the years. Mr. Pollack's play covers three decades in the lives of its characters with each scene radically different from the preceding one as is shown in the wallpaper, draperies and furniture in the House as it is seen on the stage.

The craftsmanship and efficiency of the modern stage production is shown in this play with the 21 changes of scenery being done in five minutes and 40 seconds. Most of the work is done by electrical machinery from a switchboard at a pivot, which is a comparatively new idea in stage craft. By throwing the single switch the scene pivots around in 15 seconds. As the heroine compares her life with that of the Middle Ages, the audience catches glimpses of medieval castles and knights in armor.

As the curtain rises on the first act, the scene depicts a broad expanse of farm land, a metropolis in embryo. The fields have been surveyed for streets and the future boulevards are named with sign posts. The story takes life after the young couple buy a small plot of ground in this modern reality development and dream of their home as they sit on a single stone that rests on their property. As they talk of the time when workmen will arrive to put up the frame work of their little house, frames actually appear in the background, while in and out, as the two talk and plan, phantom workmen begin the structure for the house. As the young couple continue their day dreaming, the interior of the cottage takes shape until it is completely furnished and the pair find themselves in the living room. The entire stage has been dismantled and reset for the actual play to begin.

Plants, late president of Lawrence college, and Miss Carrie E. Morgan, assistant superintendent of schools. The names of Charles A. Lindbergh and Thomas A. Edison also were suggested. Definite action on a new name for the school will be taken at the December meeting.

J. H. McAfee gave a historical sketch of the Children's County Home at Winneconne, formerly known as the Adams Farm school. McAfee, director of the home, told how the school has grown to a membership of 35 boys and girls who are either orphans or dependents. He discussed the advantages of cottage life and the useful work these children are learning. The children attend school regular in the village of Winneconne. At the farm the girls learn how to keep house and the boys are taught phases of farming and dairying.

"The farm, endowed several years ago by George Adams, Milwaukee philanthropist, has grown from a small place to one of the most important centers of child welfare in the state today," McAfee said.

Appleton Girl Scouts, under the sponsorship of the Woman's club, presented a brief Christmas seal skit as a part of the program.

Christmas Trees Replace Waterfall In City Aerator

Where water once was sprayed high into the air to be broken up into tiny red, green, amber, and blue particles, a small forest of silvery fir trees has sprung up—presenting an unusual spectacle. The plan was conceived by A. J. Hall, superintendent of the city pumping station and filtration plant.

Experimenting with aluminum paint, Mr. Hall discovered that by spraying Christmas trees with the silvery substance, some remarkably beautiful results could be obtained. The result—30 Christmas trees set in 30 nozzles in the new aerator at the water plant.

The large electric lights of various colors, used to create a miniature Niagara Falls during the past summer evening's now send their rays through the miniature forest.

Each tree was thoroughly sprayed with the aluminum paint, and presents a beautiful spectacle at night the red lamps are set at an angle and shoot their rays across the green lights where they blend into typical colors. The other colored lights add to the scheme.

Four small fir trees decorated with Christmas lights of various colors have been set in concrete flower urns at each of the four corners of the aerator, lending still more beauty to the nocturnal spectacle.

The trees will be lighted every evening for public exhibition, as was the aerator when it was in action during the summer months. The aerator ceased operating several weeks ago when cold weather first set in. Water is now aerated with equipment on the interior of the plant.

Burns From Explosion Cause Death Of Mother Of Five Children

WOMAN RUSHES INTO FLAMES TO SAVE CHILD

Oil Can Explodes as Mrs. Walter Conradt Is Starting Fire in Kitchen

Mrs. Walter Conradt, 35, mother of five children, died at Memorial hospital, New London, about 9:45 last night of burns received at her farm home shortly after noon yesterday. Mrs. Conradt's clothing was set afire when a can of kerosene she was using to start a fire exploded and deluged her with burning oil.

Screaming for help, Mrs. Conradt dashed out of the house and attracted the attention of neighbors. William Butler, who lives a short distance from the house, saw her rush into the flames and return in a few seconds with her 14-month-old daughter, Gloria, in her arms. The little girl was burned about the arms, hands and face, but her condition is not serious. She is being cared for at the William Conradt home.

Other neighbors soon rushed to the scene and took another small daughter, Evelyn, from the house. She was unhurt. Three other children were in school at the time and Mr. Conradt was assisting with farm work at the home of his brother, William, east of Shiocton.

The flaming oil set fire to the interior of the residence and it was badly damaged before the flames were put out by the New London fire department, which was called by neighbors. The extent of the loss has not been determined.

Fred Heinritz Awarded Past Commander's Ring at Last Night's Meeting

Oney Johnston post of the American Legion now has 624 members, according to a report made at last night's meeting of the post at the Elk club. The veterans again are entered in the Graft trophy contest, the trophy going to the post with the largest membership on the opening day of the mid winter conference. The conference this year will be held at Madison Jan. 11, 12 and 13.

Prizes were awarded Fred C. Heinritz and William Denstedt for work done in the membership drive which closed Nov. 11. Heinritz won first prize, a card table, and Denstedt, second, a gold pen knife with a legion emblem.

Heinritz also was awarded a past commander's ring for work he did for the legion last year while commander. The presentation was made by L. H. Keller.

It was decided to inform the national commander of the legion of the action and the national convention organization at Portland, Ore.

Post officers were instructed to secure a list of needy veterans and their families so baskets may be delivered Christmas day.

An appropriation was made to permit 10 members of the post rifle team to join the Appleton Pistol and Rifle club. The veterans are practicing on the armory range regularly and will engage in inter post and state shoots.

TREVER GIVES TALK AT CLINTONVILLE

ANNUAL POULTRY EXHIBIT OPENS HERE TOMORROW

County School Children Will Be Admitted Free Friday Afternoon

The annual Fox River Poultry and Pet Stock association show will open Wednesday evening at Armory G. and continue through Sunday.

A record number of entries is expected this year. Between 600 and 700 birds, fowl, and rabbits will be shown in competition for the prizes the association awards annually. One poultry financier, Frank E. Murphy of Green Bay, has indicated he alone will enter between 75 and 100 of his prize birds.

The same system of making birds and animals in use for the last few years will be used again this year. The birds will be displayed in special cages, arranged in rows in one section of the armory with rabbits arranged in another section, also in cages.

Poultry judge will be George Wells of Oshkosh. It has been announced, while Fred Witt of Clintonville will judge rabbits. Members of Fox river valley association will assist in judging.

Outagamie-co youngsters again will be admitted to the show without charge Friday afternoon, Dec. 11. The plan was started last year at which time about 500 pupils saw the exhibits free of charge.

This year's exhibit is expected to show a greater number of rabbits than ever before. A few years ago only poultry was exhibited at the shows. Then a few rabbits were shown and now the rabbits are almost as large a part of the show as the poultry.

AGGRESSIVE WAR TRAINING SCORED BY EICHELBERGER

League Does Not Approve of Defensive Training, He Declares

Operation of the disarmament conference of world nations in Europe, Feb. 2, 1932, were discussed for Lions club members at a meeting Monday noon at Conway hotel by Clark M. Eichelberger, executive secretary of the League of Nations, Chicago.

The conference, which has been postponed several times, will not be put off again, because public opinion is against postponement, he declared. It will call the countries together to discuss a provisional treaty which already has been drawn and which leaves only space for insertion of figures Mr. Eichelberger said.

It will reveal whether the sky is the limit in armaments or whether there is to be a reduction. Any kind of reduction is another step toward the ultimate goal.

"The treaty and conference will attempt to reduce man power of the countries with great armies," he said. "Trained reservists will not be touched upon, except where countries have compulsory military training."

"In such a treaty will be made attempt to limit the period of service. Many reserve armies, for instance Switzerland, are training their men in defensive warfare only, something the league and disarmament advocates do not disapprove. Other countries, however, as Japan and France, are training their men in aggressive warfare, which is to be condemned."

"Reduction of specific war materials cannot be brought about very well. Therefore the conference will attempt to limit expenditures, or cut expenditures to a lower figure. Naval limitations will be brought about by specific reduction in tonnage and units, promise not to exceed naval budgets of last year and reduce them if possible. Likewise air limitations will be on horsepower and units. Budgetary limitation is the only sane means of armament reduction," the speaker said, as he pointed out how Germany, limited in units and tonnage, expended great amounts of money to construct the pocket battle cruisers.

Mr. Eichelberger protested the idea that to arm is the only way to secure national safety. History has shown, he said, that when countries arm to protect themselves they too often become excited over some little controversy, someone pulls the trigger and then the world is at war.

Mr. Eichelberger said that the claim the league of nations, world court and disarmament are not making advances, is wrong. He pointed out that throughout all history man has fought—with sticks, stones and sword and guns and machine guns—and now it is expected peace movements can break down in a few months something that has been in existence for thousands of years.

Every peace treaty has been successful to some degree, and marks progress forward according to the speaker. The Washington treaty brought about abrogation of the Anglo-Jap treaty. Mr. Eichelberger said a distinct advantage to the United States and the London conference gave us a naval party with England and stopped what might have been a costly race to build ships and might have brought war.

SMALL CROWD AT OPENING OF FARM INSTITUTE

Larger Groups Expected at Afternoon and Evening Sessions at Hortonville

A small crowd of farmers attended the opening sessions this morning of the two-day farm institute at Hortonville. Large crowds were expected this afternoon, tonight, and tomorrow.

Two speakers were on the program this morning. They were C. H. Imig, Junction City, and G. M. Briggs, Madison, of the state department of agriculture. Mr. Imig discussed Quack Grass and Weed Control and Mr. Briggs discussed Making Pastures More Dependable. There was a round table discussion following Mr. Imig's talk.

A musical selection by Mrs. Theodore Gartzke opened the program. The local arrangements were made by the Hortonville Commercial club. Mr. Imig told the farmers that if they want to solve the present farm difficulty they must face their own problems and work out the solutions themselves. He said the rapidly advancing modern age is causing a change in farming methods and pointed to the fact that last year tractors and automobiles replaced 10,000,000 horses on farms. He also pointed out that the modern farmer is thick with the modern farmer to cultivate and care for more producing land and this accounted for the increase of 42,000,000 acres in wheat plantings last year. He said there is a $12,000,000-acre increase in the United States alone. He said the market is not ready to handle this huge increase in production.

Modern methods also should be adopted in fighting weeds, Mr. Imig declared. He advocated the use of chemicals, especially calcium and sodium chlorates, in treating quack grass, pigweed and Canadian thistles. He also urged farmers to select clean seeds and thus prevent the growth of weeds. He said that if seeds dropped on the ground during threshing are to be used that farmers should buy fanning mills to clean them.

He also advocated the generous use of harrows in spring to make the soil lighter and thus prevent weeds from gaining root.

Mr. Briggs urged farmers to treat their soils with chemicals to restore necessary ingredients to good crops, especially pastures. One of the essentials of good pasture, he said, is that which can be developed only by a carefully planned program of treatment. Soils should be tested before they are used for any purpose to determine their fertilization needs. Thus, the speaker said, farmers would save themselves time and money by knowing what to do.

This afternoon Gus Sell, county agent, Mr. Imig and Mr. Briggs again are scheduled to give talks. This evening Mr. Briggs will give another talk and there will be one-act plays by the Hortonville high school and the Pleasant Hills 4-H club.

Tomorrow speakers will include Mr. Imig and Mr. Sell and I. F. Hall, Madison, also of the state department of agriculture. Judging and awarding of prizes in a poster contest for rural schools also will take place tomorrow. The institute will close tomorrow night with a grand institute dance and a juvenile square dance contest.

COMMEND SCHOOL FOR SERVING OF WARM LUNCHES

One of the rural schools of Outagamie-co which has been commended by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, for its adoption of the warm lunch system advocated by the county health committee is the Lannoye school, town of Oneida. Benedict Smudde is the teacher.

The pupils, under direction of the teacher, have installed a model kitchen in the basement of the school. The girls take turns doing the cooking each week and the boys assist in serving and washing dishes. Materials for the warm lunches are brought by the students. The children line up at the sound of a bell, wash, and then are served warm lunches. The parents of the district have taken a great interest in the plan, Miss Klein said.

DAME CONTEST AGAIN WON BY MISS SEGAL

Miss Dorothy Jane Segal, high school senior, will represent Appleton high school at 2:15 Wednesday afternoon in the Fox River Valley Declamatory contest. Monday night she won the Dame declamatory contest here in the school auditorium. The valley contest, in which seven high school girls will compete, will be held in the auditorium of Appleton high school.

Each year the winner of the George Dame silver cup represents the high school. This is the second year Miss Segal has won the local contest. She placed in the valley contest last year. Her winning selection, "The Toast That We Can Drink," is a dramatic reading of the French revolution. Miss Veronica Rodebauer won second place with Euphemia Wyatt's selection, "Her Country."

The three other contestants were Miss Alice Doerfer, who gave "Eyes of the Blind" by Adele Rogers; St. John's Miss Elaine Williams who gave "The Street Singer," Jose Echeagaray; Miss Marcella Haberman, whose reading was "Red Sunset" by Essex Dane.

FINE TWO FIRMS FOR SMUGGLING OF BULBS

Fines of $5,000 each have been imposed upon two firms which confessed they were implicated in persistent attempts to smuggle anemone bulbs from Holland into Canada, and across the border of this country at a point near Fort Huron, according to word received by Gus Sell, county agent, from the United States Department of Agriculture. Dutch bulbs must be inspected by Federal agents before they are brought into the United States to prevent the introduction of serious pests and diseases. For several years one of the concerns has succeeded in smuggling bulbs into this country, while the other has been engaged in the business for a shorter time.

Plant quarantining inspectors of the United States Department of Agriculture collected evidence necessary for conviction.

One Christmas Gift that will never be forgotten!

TOYS are broken and discarded. Costly trifles are enjoyed for a day and then laid aside. But a fine musical instrument goes on giving pleasure year after year — increasing pleasure as the young owner's skill grows and flying fingers bring new beauty from ivory keys or taut violin strings!

The gift of music is the gift of lasting joy! The musician is never lonely, never at a loss for companionship, for entertainment. Popular in every gathering, looked up to, admired... because of an ability to contribute something to everyone's enjoyment and inspiration!

Give YOUR child this incomparable gift. And give it THIS Christmas... when really fine instruments may be bought at remarkable savings.

BEFORE THE TARIFF VOTE

"The stock is of no account, worth nothing and neither is my note. Therefore the score is nothing to nothing in this game."

Such was the flippant reply of Senator Watson of Indiana when his suspicious purchase of stock in the Southern Sugar Company prior to the tariff vote was unearthed.

Has a member of congress the moral right to buy stock in a sugar company when tariff schedules are about to be brought before him? Tariff schedules cover so many hundreds of articles that it might be impossible to find a member of congress who is not somehow directly affected by his vote. But sugar has long been a subject of much controversy and sugar stocks have for long fluctuated in direct relation to the tariff. Moreover there has been much infamous history for forty years in connection with the sugar tariff and some of which comes right up to February, 1930.

At that time the senate had refused to approve 2.4 cents a pound on Cuban sugar inserted in the House bill, and later by a vote of 48 to 38 rejected a tariff of 2 cents, taking the position that the rate of 1.76 cents should not be increased. Within a month the country was astonished to see 5 Democrats and 6 Republicans switch their votes. The increase to 2 cents was the result. Whereupon Senator Watson's stock looked forward to a happy future, expecting the depression fog to lift.

The constant charges that sugar companies have advised congressmen to buy sugar stocks before a vote and when the purchase was completed left it to their own good judgment whether a high tariff on sugar wasn't an advisable thing for the country, in fact almost an indispensable thing for its welfare, finds ample support in the transaction.

However the matter may seem when a congressman owns stock or has an interest in a concern affected by tariff schedules, the procedure employed sometimes shows a guilty purpose more clearly even than direct words of mouth.

Senator Watson purchased stock in this company. He paid no money. He gave his note for the consideration as part of an agreement that if the deal turned out profitably the stock would be sold and he would pocket the profit but if the market went down the stock would merely be returned by him, his note torn up and no loss ensue. The note carried no interest.

To claim that the deal was genuine or that the senator did not clearly understand that the purpose was to improperly influence him, regardless of the businesslike talk that may have passed between the parties, is to assume that our reading public is still in the kindergarten.

The purpose of the sugar company was to put Senator Watson under obligations to it.

The purpose of the senator was to make a bit of money out of the situation and a deal was arranged by which a man bought thousands of dollars worth of stock, stood to make thousands of dollars, but put up no money and took no chances at all.

The whole deal sounds like Harry Daugherty. And had Mr. Daugherty proposed it one may feel sure that Mr. Fall would have nodded his head wisely, shut one eye slightly and bit off the end of another perfect.

VOTING FOR MODIFICATION

Both leaders in the house of representatives are reputed drys but have announced their willingness as well as their purpose to get a direct expression of opinion from members of congress on prohibition questions.

Despite the strength of sentiment against prohibition it has been impossible to date to procure a direct vote on a direct question either of modification or repeal. This has been due to rules of procedure invoked by the Anti-Saloon League members who do not concern themselves about permitting the people to express their opinions through representatives but have been bent on the purpose of gagging any and every expression of opinion.

The wets do not anticipate favorable action in either the house or the senate but they are going to get every member of congress on record. We in Wisconsin for instance are going to find whether, as claimed, there are two congressmen who will vote dry in defiance of the wishes of the people of this state for modification. Similar situations exist throughout the country.

When the vote is tabulated there will no longer be any doubt or confusion about the position taken by every member. That is all that is expected from this vote. It is the next election that will cut the dries down like a field of grain in the path of a tornado—if the country be as wet as it appears to be from all reliable sources of information.

Of course, dry leaders claim the country is perfectly arid. But when they are requested to join in a movement like that proposed by the American Legion to get an actual expression of opinion from the people they become huffy and declare they have been insulted. If they say the country is dry it is dry, in fact it wouldn't dare to be otherwise. To request a vote under the circumstances is to doubt their word and what greater offense could be committed than doubting the word of a dry agitator, whose ability to agitate determines the amount of his monthly check?

Senator Bingham is going to introduce a resolution calling for repeal of the 18th amendment and a return of the authority so unwisely placed in federal hands to the states where it belongs, also an act to amend the Volstead law to permit the immediate sale of 4 per cent beer.

These tactics are sensible. Of course 4 per cent beer will come before the complete repeal of the prohibition amendment but even if it comes the amendment should be repealed. It has no more place in the constitution of the United States than a provision denuding the states of all authority whatsoever.

JAPAN AND THE BOYCOTT

China, among many other demands on the League of Nations, has requested that Article 16 of the League covenant be enforced against Japan. This article, one of the League's major offensive weapons, provides for a trade and financial boycott against any member nation which resorts to war in violation of the covenant. If enforced, it will be of interest to consider how the boycott is likely to work out.

The essential of a successful boycott is that no major element can be left out which might detract from its punitive effect. The fact that the United States and Russia, while signatories to the Kellogg pact, are not members of the League and therefore are not obliged to enter into the boycott, would seem to be an obstacle difficult for the League to surmount.

A survey of Japan's foreign trade would indicate that any such boycott would be ineffective without the concurrence of the United States.

While Japan produces the bulk of her food supply, she depends upon imports to supply the raw materials for her manufacturing industries.

In 1930 one-third of Japan's imports came from the United States and she in return supplied us with a like proportion of her exports.

Raw cotton, an important item to Japan, accounted for forty per cent of her imports from the United States, or one-fourth of American cotton exports.

Eighty per cent of Japan's exports to this country was raw silk. To stop this would cripple the American silk industry.

Serious as the interruption of this traffic would be to Japan, and notwithstanding the beneficial effects it might have upon cotton manufacturing in the United States, or the manufacture of silk substitutes, it would involve such important economic changes, that it is extremely doubtful if an American congress could be prevailed upon to agree to such a boycott.

Great Britain and Germany sell more to Japan than they buy from her and would not be likely to concur if the United States stayed out.

The United States, therefore, in this as well as many other international questions, holds the key. There is slight chance that the League, even to maintain the last vestige of its authority, will call upon the sanction of Article 16 without having American cooperation.

NO INDEED, that loud crash you heard yesterday wasn't a bombing or a falling star of the stercres cracking up from the cold weather . . . it was Congress opening up shop for the winter . . . and, dear readers, you can only sit back and hope . . . as a matter of fact, you'd better go out and buy all your Christmas presents now and spend all the dough you possibly can . . . because, folks, you can't tell what's going to happen . . . whether Congress gets a taxation-fever or decides to give you back all the taxes you've paid for the past ten years will not be known for quite a while . . . but, no matter what happens, you might as well have a good time before something takes place . . .

Her Husband Makes His Living at Bridge, Too

"Men," says Mrs. Ely Culbertson of the Contract Bridge Club, "lose their glamor when they play bridge." And one writer points out that they sometimes lose legs and arms and sometimes even their places in the world of living.

But what we started out to do was thank Mrs. Culbertson for the third and fourth words of her statement.

Some day we are going to do it. Yassuh. It's been years since we did it and quite a while since anyone else has done it. Yassuh. We're gonna try to work out a cross word puzzle.

It's said that Ramsay MacDonald may fly to India for Christmas. That's a trip of some 12,000 miles. If he does, aviation has really gotten somewhere. Trips like that by men of MacDonald's rating are almost unprecedented.

Iowa added 500 miles of road last year, and according to stories we once heard about Iowa, the state now has 500 miles of road in all.

Prexy Hoover is to deliver a message to Congress, telling 'em what to do, what not to do and when to do or not to do it. Quite possibly, a lot of people throughout the land will read the message and get its point. Now, if someone can just get Congress to find out what's in it.

We're quite proud of the way our nuzzpepper is crashing through for sweet charity this week. Now, what is the rest of the town going to do? Well stick by our story that the city can't put it across and continue to hope we're a liar.

Harry Powers, (America's most recent "Bluebeard") is about to go on trial in West Virginia. The trial is being held in the Clarksburg courthouse although officials were supposed to be trying to keep the affair from becoming a "spectacle." They're selling books and pamphlets about "Bluebeard."

Which is just another one of the things which makes American justice such a queer sort of affair at times.

Opinions Of Others

SELLING OUT

A peasant living near Dusschnick, in Czechoslovakia, has advertised by means of a placard posted in the corner of the town hall that he will sell his six children to any persons willing and able to give them a good home, for 125 kronen ($3.60) each. The peasant also offers his wife to any person in need of a "bride," capable and intelligent companion.

The novel advertisement has excited a great deal of amusement, besides some derision and raucous. Through some defect or omission in the law, the authorities have not as yet been able to take any action against the individual, whose mercenary designs seem to have been prompted by the family's destitution.—Le Matin, Paris (France).

In the desert ranges of the west, sheepmen sometimes cover snowdrifts with straw to delay melting and furnish water for a longer period. This water flies, then, over early dry seasons.

PNEUMONIA PROPHYLAXIS

Candidly I have little respect for authorities as authorities. So often an authority proves to be wrong. This is particularly in reference to medicine and medical authorities. Medical opinion, unsupported by actual test or by scientific experiment, is apt to be very misleading. The old timers had a lot of queer notions, and many of these notions are still current and one who ventures to question or scout the soundness or dependability of the notion gets the name of being a radical.

Even Osler himself fell into the error of imaging a person could catch cold from himself. While Sir William was frank and fair enough to admit that exposure to cold did not cause pneumonia, but, as he believed, only lowered resistance and rendered one vulnerable to the invasion of the lungs by Pneumococci, he nevertheless imagined that pneumonia "in the great majority of cases is an autoinfection"—that is, the Pneumococci which most persons normally harbor in mouth and throat treacherously attack the lungs as soon as they find the resistance down. Of course Osler had no better ground for this quaint theory than he had for the theory that exposure to cold "lowers resistance."

But it was a notion generally accepted by the doctors of the day, and a few of the old timers still cherish some such notion. However, there is no scientific evidence that the Pneumococci normally inhabiting the saliva cause disease; nor is there any scientific evidence that everyday exposure such as everybody experiences now and then, renders the lungs or other tissues more vulnerable to infection. All these notions are just quaint notions and it doesn't make them more respectable because great medical authorities of the past held such notions or very eminent doctors of our town time still hold such notions.

If there is any advantage in the use of antiseptics in the hope of preventing pneumonia, which I personally doubt but some good doctors believe in, then I am sure no antiseptic one can use as mouthwash, gargle, spray or nose irrigation or sniff, is superior to boric acid. Merely from experience and observation I have long believed that boric acid is particularly efficacious against the Pneumococci. So if you would like to use any antiseptic in the attempt to avoid contracting pneumonia, I should recommend a solution of a rounded teaspoonful of boric acid in a quart of boiled water, as mouthwash, throat spray, or nasal irrigation. I do not recommend the snuffing of a pinch of boric acid powder into the nostrils, but several readers who have used it so each night and morning for a few weeks, declare that it gives much benefit for chronic rhinitis.

Probably better prophylaxis than the use of antiseptics is the care of the teeth. Unless the teeth are kept in sound condition, free of any cavities or pus pockets or areas of infection about roots, one can scarcely hope to discourage the virulent tendencies of the Pneumococcus. Likewise it is important to have any foci of infection in the tonsils eradicated—often this is most satisfactorily done by diathermy treatment.

Of course the main preventive measure against pneumonia is to keep out of the spray range of the patient.

What, Without a Poll?

Please inform your readers that the pamphlets "Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care," are sent on request by the U. S. department of labor, Washington, D. C., free of cost. (Mrs. E. G. K.)

Answer — Well, maybe they are sent to Republicans and their blood relations. If any known Democrat gets one free I'd like to hear the news and learn how he wangled it. The grasping government puts a price of a nickel and a dime on these pamphlets, I find. At that, the pamphlets are well worth the price.

Age 30 years, height 5 feet 92 inches, weight 166½ pounds, occupation stenographer, handicap asthma for the five years. . . (A. M. B.)

Answer — Your name should be Winnie. If you can fix the date of onset of the asthma definitely it may be a good clue to the cause. Did you perhaps begin using a new toilet preparation at that time, something containing orris root? Or did you begin working in a new environment then? Holy Fright! Lay off a couple weeks and take the insulin treatment — if any doctor tries to discourage or scare you away from taking insulin treatment, merely to help you gain some needed flesh, please give me his name for my blacklist as an incompetent man. I find too many physicians listed in our blue book as humbuggers are in fact wholly out of step with modern medicine. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

ONE more wee Cappy, in the plane, reached over for the pop, but 'twas in vain. A sudden wind swerved him about and gave him quite a scare. Thought he, "I wish I was below. Perhaps that's where I'm going to go. I'd be much safer on the ground than up here in this air."

"But I must save this little hound and take him right down to the ground. As soon as this stiff breeze dies out, I'll make another try." He tried to make his plane go straight, but it was blown at such a gale that all it did was dip and dive around up in the sky.

The other Tinies, down below, gazed upwards. Scorny said, "I know that Cappy's having trouble. He has drifted out of sight. The clouds have covered him, no doubt. Perhaps he'll shortly sail right out into the open sky again. I hope that he's all right."

"Ah, he was foolish," Clowny cried, "to start out on that alpine ride. But that's how Cappy is, you know. He's brave as he can be. That's why he willingly went up to try and save that little pup. I guess he's gone much higher than our little eyes can see."

Then Cappy said, "All we can do is wait. I'll bet that he'll come through the air at quite a speedy pace most any minute now. Snooks, he can run a plane all right, so there is no real cause for fright. He knows a lot 'bout flying 'cause a flyer taught him how."

By this time Cappy'd worked around in his small plane until he found that he could touch the little dog, still hanging to the balloon. "Hey, hang on tight," he kindly cried, "I'll shortly end your chinny-ride. You'll sail right back to Bow-wow Land in this plane, pretty soon."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—"Texas Row" in the house office building on the hill—long a fixture in congressional circles—will be broken up within a few days if the Democrats come into control.

"Texas Row" is that line of offices on the fifth floor where representatives of the Lone Star State are fond of establishing quarters when they come to Washington.

The fifth floor is attic-like in appearance. Main elevators do not go that high. It is necessary to take side elevators to reach it. The ceilings are low and the corridors a bit gloomy. There is not the finery there which one observes on the other floors.

Each congressman occupies small rooms partitioned in half. His secretary sits in the first half, he in the other toward the back. The entrance is through a white painted door, the upper part of it white glass.

Walking down one corridor, glancing at the stenciled names on the doors, a visitor gets the impression that he is calling the roll of the Texas delegation in congress.

In office 538 there is Daniel Garrett of Houston. In 542 Hatton Summers of Dallas is located. Sam Rayburn of Bonham is in 546. Wright Fairman of Texas is in 545. And next door to Fairman, in 546 is Marvin Jones of Amarillo.

Moving Day Coming
If the Democrats organize the house in the coming congress and they will more than likely, there'll be some moving in this section. Bigger and better offices are in store for some of them—offices which are appropriately termed suites.

Three of the group will become chairmen of major committees and inherit office space and equipment the like of which only the privileged may enjoy.

Sam Rayburn, for example, will move from his little cubby hole on the fifth floor down to the second in the space allowed the chairman of the committee on agriculture and foreign commerce. His offices are perhaps the swankiest of the lot.

Glad of the Change
Hatton Summers will be installed in the quarters on the third floor reserved for the chairman of the judiciary committee. The room in which his committee meets resembles a court room in appearance.

Marvin Jones, who becomes chairman of the agriculture committee, will get the agricultural suite on the second floor, occupied for so long by the venerable Haugen of Iowa, dean of the house.

Most of them admit that it will feel rather strange moving into such luxury after so many years in the "ratte." But they're jubilant all the same.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—The Thanksgiving day parade of Tony Sarg balloons will take place as usual, with no evidence of deflation.

In fact, one of the grotesquely decorated bags will be a 52-foot affair, inflated with helium gas.

This will be liberated at the end of the procession down Broadway, to soar into the clouds over Manhattan.

Sarg recently went up in a blimp to ascertain whether any antagonistic air currents or splinters of silver lining might spell disaster for his balloon masterpiece, and reported all's well.

Slow Motion Pictures

It has been public knowledge for a long time that Ruth Etting's recurrent bad dream is that of being chased by Chinese. The other day Harry Richman advised her to repeat, each time she is ready for bed, "I don't want any part of Manchuria."

Speaking of Manchuria, Douglas Fairbanks stopped here en route to the Far East. He said he hoped to shoot some movies in the land of contention. His equipment enables him to take slow motion pictures.

William K. Howard is one of the most heroic of the commuters from Hollywood. He rushes back to New York after each of his pictures is completed on the coast.

Kenneth MacKenna, Hugh Trevor, John Davidson and the late Louis Wolheim are on the sizable list of Columbia university's contributions to the business of acting. The late Milton Sills once was on the Columbia faculty.

About Eugene O'Neill

Eugene O'Neill was not credited with origination of the lines which I said, in a recent column, he wrote upon one of the beams of his old apartment in Provincetown.

I have a peculiar acquaintance whose habit is scribbling Shakespearean passages on the walls of public buildings, but so far no one has proposed his claim to their authorship.

To have satisfied Miriam Salanave of Oakland, Cal., I should have said: O'Neill wrote upon one of the beams the well known words:

"Before the eyes can see, they must be incapable of tears."

"Before the ear can hear, it must have lost its sensitive-ness."

And so on.

My correspondent wants it known that:

"Those lines . . . were taken verbatim from a very well known book, 'Light on the Path,' written by Mabel Cook Collins, 1854."

"She died many years ago in London and was one of the early members of the Theosophical society. . . These lines are familiar to thousands of people."

Miriam Salanave concludes, "It is exceedingly interesting, however, to find that O'Neill was familiar with 'Light on the Path' and thought highly enough of it to write down those particular lines where he could frequently read them while at work in the days when life may have been less rosy than it is today for him."

The beam seems destined to become valuable O'Neillana because the playwright wrote upon it.

JERUSALEM CAPTURED

On Dec. 8, 1917, Jerusalem surrendered to General Allenby and the British forces.

Jerusalem's capture was the seventh fall of the Holy City before besiegers since its stormy history began more than 3000 years ago.

Welsh and home country troops advanced from the direction of Bethlehem, drove back the enemy and, passing Jerusalem on the east, established themselves on the Jerusalem-Jericho road.

At the same time London infantry and dismounted yeomanry attacked the strong enemy positions west and northwest of Jerusalem and placed themselves astride the Jerusalem-Shechem road.

Isolated, the Holy City surrendered to General Allenby, British, French and Mohammedans safeguarded the holy places.

General Allenby had begun his offensive in Palestine with capture of Jerusalem as his objective with the taking of the city of Beersheba on Oct. 31, 1917.

DENY PLEA OF HENDERSON FOR GREATER POWER

Chain-store Antagonist Must Operate Radio Station on Old Basis

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright 1931, By Cons. Press

Washington—(CPA)—W. K. "Dog-gone World" Henderson, one of broadcasting's original stormy petrels, has lost his battle for full time operation and a three-fold power increase, but his radio station will continue to bear the ether waves with choice morsels of vituperation from down in Shreveport, La.

The Federal Radio commission has denied the application of KWKH, the Henderson "mountain" for around-the-clock operation on the choice 850-kilocycle channel, heard up and down the Mississippi valley. It likewise has rejected his plea for an increase in power from 10,000 to 30,000 watts, which, he hoped, would have given him something of a nationwide range. While it condemned the anti-chain store crusade of Henderson in principle and frowned upon his fund solicitations and other campaigns, the commission, however, did not take punitive action since his application for renewal of license was not at stake.

As a matter of fact, KWKH has toned down considerably during the past year, or since the time the commission placed the station on probation for alleged use of obscene, indecent and profane language by Henderson.

Fight To Finish
The Henderson case evolved into a fight to the finish between KWKH and WWL, New Orleans, or Loyola university, which shares time with the Shreveport station. After Henderson filed his ouster application, WWL retaliated with a similar full-time request, but sought a power increase to only 10,000 watts. The commission sustained into the recommendations of Examiner Elmer W. Pratt by denying both requests for full time, but granting WWL an increase to 10,000 watts. In all other respects the station remain status quo. The case really dates back to

GRANT WOMAN HALF OF MATE'S PENSION

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Mrs. Mary Jeszka of Marinette, Wis., has won in her fight to obtain an apportionment of half the pension received by her husband Frank Jeszka, a Spanish American veteran.
Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton, who appealed to the Pension Bureau on behalf of Mrs. Jeszka, has been notified that the veteran's wife would receive half his pension, beginning Oct. 4.
Jeszka, who now lives at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home in Wisconsin, had previously refused to contribute to his wife's support. The veterans' bureau found that he should be compelled to divide his pension with her, however, because of evidence to show that he had deserted her although she was a woman of good moral character and in needy circumstances and although he, himself, has a living at the Wau-paca Veterans' Home.

6 CONTAGIOUS CASES REPORTED LAST WEEK

Six cases of contagious disease were reported to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, last week. The list included one case of scarlet fever, one of tuberculosis, two of whooping cough, and three of chicken pox.

September, 1929, when original hearings were held.

In its decision the commission said that much of KWKH's time is taken up by talks of Henderson, averaging five or six hours a day, during which he expresses his "personal views, mainly consisting of what he conceives to be an educational campaign relative to improper practices and monopolistic tendencies of chain stores." In the winters of 1929 and 1930, when the campaign was at its peak, Henderson spoke 18 hours a day, the commission alleges.

It was brought out that direct advertising and selling of products in which Henderson was financially interested was carried on extensively over KWKH, and that he had collected some $373,500 from independent merchants to fight the chain stores in 12 donations for an alleged mythical organization known as the "Merchant Minute Men." Of this, it was charged Henderson had spent $131,500 in paying off the indebtedness of the Henderson Iron works, an insolvent company of which he was principal stockholder.

DANGER, BEWARE!

Those who have read my views on Bridge are well aware that I always prefer opening with a suit bid when the hand contains a possible sound suit bid. The primary reason for this purpose is that through these approach bids suit distributions can be felt out and the best declaration decided upon through the exchange of information between partners. Of course, there are many hands containing sufficient honor strength to justify an Opening bid which do not contain a biddable trump suit and in such cases an Opening notrump bid is made as a choice of evils. The other choice would be to pass, which with the requisite honor-trick strength ordinarily would mislead partner and prove a losing course. However, Opening bids of notrump, especially when vulnerable, should be carefully considered, taking into consideration the possibility that partner's hand may be trickless. In such cases, as an original notrump bid implies the lack of a biddable suit, the losses may be more severe, even if not doubled. If doubled and the remaining honor strength is massed against the bidder, the losses are quite apt to be staggering.

Today's hand is a case in point. Both sides vulnerable. South—Dealer.

PROTEST MOVE TO HALT KEG SALE OF CEREAL BEVERAGES

Plan Hearing on Matter Before Bureau of Industrial Alcohol

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—Wisconsin brewers will be given an opportunity to present evidence to show why the bureau of industrial alcohol should not issue orders prohibiting the sale of cereal beverages in kegs at a hearing granted by the bureau at the request of Representative John C. Schafer of Milwaukee.

Word that the prohibition enforcement division had recommended prohibiting the sale of cereal beverages in kegs as a measure of law enforcement alarmed the Wisconsin Brewers' association with the result that they protested through their attorney, Ralph Jacobson of Madison. At the instance of Jacobson and individual Wisconsin brewing organizations, Schafer conferred with officials of the bureau of industrial alcohol and succeeded in obtaining a hearing before any action is taken on the matter.

If the proposed prohibition of sale of cereal beverages is here to be adopted, it will mean that the beer man will be denied his most direct and near beer and only those who can afford to buy expensive bottled drinks can have their drink, according to Representative Schafer.

Typing Helps Child Learn Its Spelling

BY ANGELO PATRI
"My boy Thomas is very intelligent. He has an I. Q. of a hundred and thirty but he hates to write. He hates to use his hands. You can't blame him when you know his writing is terrible. He does very poor handwriting and when he can get out of it he does. This makes him lose a great deal because there is a great deal of writing to be done in his school work."

How about letting Thomas use a typewriter? It often happens that children have poor control of their hands. For some reason or other that power has not developed along with others and the child is handicapped in consequence. Exercise strengthens the hands. The child must be tempted to do any work with them and as it is natural for him to avoid anything that causes him severe effort or that ends in failure, he shuns handwriting.

A typewriter always attracts a child. This intelligent child who knows his lessons but who cannot write them, can use a typewriter to great advantage. He will like to use it. By and by he will discover that his hands are stronger than they do more accurate work, that they can actually be depended upon. The exercise of writing on the machine has brought the fingers into form. I would not worry because this child did not write as well as other children of his age so long as he could do other things better. If he can type his lessons, let him. He will be able to do all the hand writing that is necessary when his hands have been developed to the right size.

Typing helps poor spellers too. Searching out the letters, punching them one by one, seems to help children to remember how the word looks and how it is spelled.

The high school children find typewriters most helpful. The papers look much better, they are easier for the teacher to read. A notebook filled with neatly typed sheets is a much readier help than one filled with handwriting, however carefully done. Children need to use their eyes on an examination is at hand the notebooks have to be studied carefully. Well typed pages do not make such a demand on the eyes as the handwritten ones. That counts too, at a time of strain and stress.

The teachers are glad to get typed sheets for correction. There is nothing so wearying to the eyesight as a list of handwritten papers, especially if when the writers have not completely mastered the art of penmanship.

I have mentioned this because many conscientious parents have refused to let the older children use typewriters. I would let any child who could, have one and use it. A typewriter makes a fine Christmas and birthday gift, a fine graduation gift. Pass along your old one. You have no idea how much pleasure and profit a high school pupil will get out of it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Mr. K. Scholl, and Louis Maraga, five tables were in play.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Luebke, 1223 W. Fourth-st., entertained seven couples and their families at dinner Sunday night at their home in honor of their thirteen wedding anniversary. Cards were played and prizes won by Willard Magnus, Daniel Eldt, Mrs. Arnold Boerning, and Mrs. Ernest Schummelpheng.

Knights of Pythias held a card party Saturday night at Castle hall. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. John Wenzel, Mrs. E. G. Balke, Mrs. and Mrs. Mayme Goe, and at scotch by Mrs. M. J. Boerler, M. J. Gohm, Melina Van Carter and J. Caster.

SORORITIES TO SPONSOR JOINT DANCING PARTY

Old man depression again has stepped in as a factor to be reckoned with in connection with social events at Lawrence college, and especially enough one of the largest formal dancing parties in the history of the school is the result.

At a meeting of the Pan-Hellenic council Monday evening, representatives from each sorority of the campus decided to hold a joint formal dance next spring. The party will be sponsored by all of the sororities and will take the place of separate spring formal usually given by each sorority.

This innovation seems to be just one more of the new steps made necessary this year by the depression. The possibility of this type of party has been discussed for some time and it has been decided that it will materially reduce the costs incurred by each sorority by spring parties.

Miss Ruth Nickel has been appointed as the head of a committee to investigate means of financing, and a possible place to hold the party, which will be large enough to accommodate the 500 couples expected to attend.

Franklin-st., entertained the two teachers at dinner Saturday evening at their home. Seven guests were present. Prof. Cast is instructor in German at Lawrence college. Miss Elise Bohstedt, also instructor in German at Lawrence college, entertained the teachers at dinner Sunday noon at Russell Sage hall.

Miss Schaefer was the weekend guest of Miss Ruth Sackler and Miss Toby of Mrs. Carlton Sackler.

The Story of Sue

MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

AS soon as Jack and Joe Beckley had passed Sue slipped away from the man with whom she had been talking. She didn't know his name. It didn't matter. She hurried to the door and got there just as Jack came along.

"I'm sorry to intrude, Mrs. Thornton, but I saw you talking to Ruth Bradley a while ago. Do you know, by any chance, what's happened to her?"

"Oh, yes," Sue answered. "She's gone along on a party to get some food."

"She has! But she came with me!" Possessiveness, not liking to be deprived of whatever it had possessed. "I know," Jack said. "You were taking her sister, Sally, weren't you?" Sue asked. Purposely she made her voice very innocent.

"Sally explained that you were so busy, well, it let Ruth pretty much on her own."

"I brought Ruth," The young doctor answered. "I don't then come along with us?" Jack's voice came heartily.

"Thanks. Mind if I do?" "We would all like it," Sue knew that she had succeeded before the evening was over. Ruth had a happy glow in her eyes. She didn't seem afraid to be herself.

It wasn't very late. The group talked on. The coffee was hot and golden. So were the waffles.

Ruth had a smile and was enjoying herself. She told some funny incidents of her hospital days. Dr. Starnor backed them up and matched them. Miles Roberts, not quite understanding the appearance of the other man, had accepted him with enough grace, and entered into the swing of the thing.

The door opened and Sue, glancing at the clock, removed her hand from the coffee cup that she had been about to raise.

A woman was coming. Mysterious. Alluring. In black clinging clothes. The woman was Natalie Webber, the young widow who had recently come to town.

But Sue was more interested in the man who followed her. He was Jimmy Hayden. Jimmy was married to Grace.

Jack and Sue exchanged swift glances. Jimmy looked slightly embarrassed as he saw the party. There was a low murmur of voices and a little laughter from the corner booth where he and Mrs. Webber established themselves.

They were still there when the other party came. Moved by some sort of an impulse—she didn't quite know what—Sue made a suggestion to Jack as they came swinging down the road.

"If there's a light burning in Grace's apartment as we pass, let's drop in."

"O. K.," Jack answered but his voice was puzzled. "I just have a hunch that she's lonely, that's all," Sue explained.

There was a light burning as they came along.

SOAP AND WATER EXCELLENT FOR AN OILY SKIN

BY ALICIA HART
Oil may be all right poured on troubled waters. But the lady who has an over supply of oil in her skin should do something about it.

An oily skin may, with proper care, turn into a normal skin that is a real beauty asset. But it is up to you to start it on its way.

Unless there is some constitutional objection to it, soap and water should be used on an oily skin. Get a bland soap and use medium warm water, not hot, for hot water may start oil secretion.

Finish off with cold water and pat up your face and your neck with a medium light cream, one that has little fat in it. Wipe it off after a few minutes and then use astringent lavishly. An excellent way to pat astringent on is to use pads of cotton soaked in the liquid.

When you have finished toning up your face this way, be careful about foundation creams. The chances are that you do not need any at all.

During the way, you should freshen up your face at least twice, if your skin is oily. Or you will find that your make-up is not holding its own and your hairing average for beauty will be less. For this freshening, avoid creams that are rich and oily. One of the best liquid cleansers that are fragrant and refreshing would be much better. Then use an astringent again, either commercial one or something like witch-hazel.

Nights, go in strong for the warm water and soap cleansing again finished off with cold water. If you feel the need of some cream, try one of the pore creams. These often are excellent for the large pores that are likely to accompany oily skin conditions.

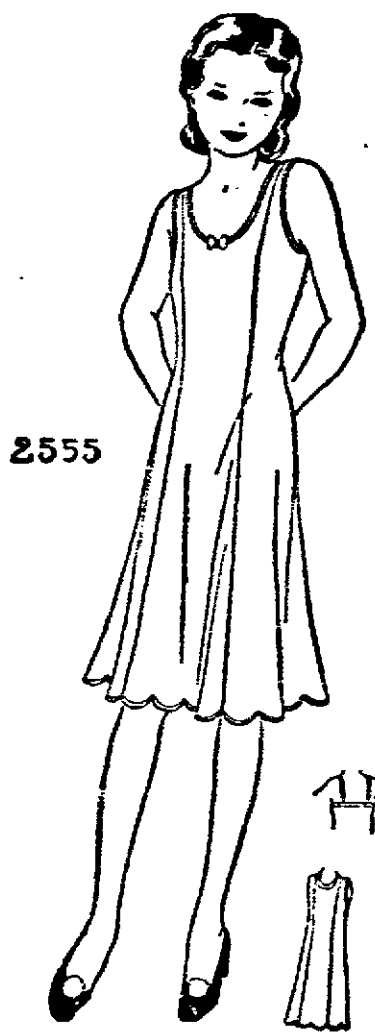

When you start this treatment be careful not to overeat of fats. Your whole system must help you if you are to attain the perfect complexion. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

PUGILIST'S EX-WIFE IS AWARDED $5,000

New York—(AP)—A jury in federal court Monday awarded the former wife of Edward P. ("Mickey") Walker, erstwhile middleweight boxing champion, $5,000 of the $25,000 for which she sued the pugilist. Walker's attorneys entered a motion to set the verdict aside.

Mr. Walker demanded $25,000 for her own support and that of the children, Patricia and Edward, between June 25, 1929, when the couple separated, and July 16, 1930, when a divorce decree became final. Mrs. Walker had charged the pugilist with cruelty and excessive use of alcohol.

TRAFFIC HELD UP FOR BABY BUGGY; OFFICER IS PEEVED

Hammond, Ind.—(AP)—A triple line of motor cars at State and Holman-ave, Hammond's busiest corner, paused Sunday night when Traffic Policeman Henry Eckstein held up his hand.

Slowly there moved across the street a shiny new baby carriage, pushed by a timid but fatherly-looking gentleman.

At the curb the gentleman stopped to thank the policeman. Just as he did so the tiny head of a poodle dog peeked from behind the blankets and barked in the officer's face.

"The perambulator pusher threw his vehicle into high speed, but Officer Eckstein caught him. 'What?' he asked, 'is the idea?'"

"Well," replied the gentleman, "You see it was so cold tonight my wife made me take Fifi out for a ride in the baby's buggy. We usually make her walk."

W. W. Advice was given in this column not long ago to another woman very much in the same position as yourself. The one thing that your husband and the trouble-maker want to avoid is being taken seriously—or having to come right out and state what their intentions are. They prefer to keep their affair in the back ground and trust to your good-nature to let things remain as they are. You can't go on like this much longer. Instead of pretending not to see what everyone in town knows to be the truth, just face the facts calmly and insist that your husband face them too. Ask him whether he intends to put the other woman in your place—or whether the other woman is prepared to give up your husband for your sake.

And to make assurance doubly sure, take her from your confidence and tell her frankly that you don't care for the present situation and that if she intends to share your husband away from you she'd best do it, and get it over with.

Let them both realize that this is a serious problem, not a pleasant game in which you are always the goat. They have got to make up their minds what they are going to do, you bring this fact home to them. I think you'll find that each will prefer to let the affair drop rather than have it assume the proportions of a serious domestic war.

To make every curl, cut inner stalks into three or four inch lengths. With a comb divide each piece down into thin strips, stopping when within an inch of the end. Drop into the water. Strips will curl up as they are unrolled.

If apples or turnips are picked with a fork before they are baked, they will not break open while cooking.

Burn newspapers in your furnace several times before starting a furnace fire for the winter. The soot that has accumulated in the chimney during the summer will drop down if newspapers are burned in the furnace.

FASCIST SECRETARY RESIGNS HIS OFFICE

Rome—(AP)—Giovanni Giuriati resigned Monday as secretary of the Fascist party and was succeeded by his assistant, Achille Starace.

Giuriati's resignation has been talked of since September when the government reached an agreement with the Vatican on the Catholic Action troubles. It was said then that his removal had been demanded by the Vatican because of a speech he made at Milan in connection with those troubles and because the Vatican held him responsible, by virtue of his office, for raids on Catholic clubs.

WE WOMEN

PHILANDERING HUSBANDS—NEGLECTED WIFE SHOULD ACCEPT FRIENDS' INVITATIONS

JEALOUSY: Obviously you've got to hang on and keep smiling since you can't leave your husband under the present circumstances. If he's taken into the philandering habit, it will be difficult to break him of it without constant recriminations which you very wisely want to avoid.

You have been sensible in avoiding scenes, and in forgiving completely his one escapade which ended in something very near scandal. But I agree that it isn't the most pleasant task in the world to be an agreeable young wife when you know perfectly well that your husband is carrying on flirtations with other women, every time he gets a chance.

Still there are your three children—and there is the fact that the man of the house is generous and kind—and there is also the fact that in spite of everything you love this fellow husband of yours. All of which would point to the conclusion that you're happier and better off with him than without him.

Now, just occasionally a clever wife is able to manage a situation of this sort, without breaking her heart in endless years of fruitless effort to reform the wandering husband. Possibly you might be able to give your husband food for thought by presenting him with a novel situation now and then.

You say that he leaves you two or three evenings a week and that you are then alone, although you have invitations from your friends to go out. Don't be left alone. Invite those friends to come and see you or go out with them. Let the man of the house get over feeling that you're always patiently waiting for him to turn up, that your life is centered around him and that unless he is willing to provide you with companionship you have none at all. Let him begin to think of you as an independent personality to be reckoned with—someone, in fact to be treated with the same courtesy and attention which he wastes on his various flirtations.

If he is really fond of you—and the chances are a hundred to one that he is—he won't want to lose your whole-souled love and admiration. He won't like to feel that you're drifting away from him. He may even be impelled to make real efforts to hold you. Try not to grow listless and indifferent to the situation. It may be saved—and it's worth saving, since your only real happiness lies in making your marriage a success.

1931 NAVIGATION SEASON LIGHTEST IN SEVERAL YEARS

Heavy Decreases Reported in Shipment of Grain, Iron Ore, Coal, Etc.

Superior—(AP)—The 1931 navigation season at the Duluth and Superior harbor, virtually closed now, will go down as one of the lightest in several years, according to preliminary figures given out here.

Handling of commodities at the second largest port in the country was on a small scale during the nearly eight months of navigation the figures reveal, with material decreases shown in shipments of grain, iron ore, coal and other commodities.

Local navigation may continue for a week or so, but activity along the north shore of Lake Superior has been suspended until next April.

The shipments of grain from the Duluth and Superior elevators will total approximately 500,000 bushels, a decrease of approximately 250,000 bushels over the shipments of the previous year, according to figures of the Duluth Board of Trade reveal. This figure is the lowest number of shipments from the Twin Ports since 1915, while compared to some seasons is not one-fourth the total. In 1921 grain shipments from the Twin Ports aggregated more than 1,700,000 bushels.

Of the total amount of grain sent to eastern and Canadian markets this season, about 350,000 bushels were wheat, while shipments of rye, flax and oats each totaled approximately 50,000 bushels; corn 200,000 bushels and barley, 200,000 bushels. Receipts of grain here this season totaled about 550,000 bushels, of which 450,000 bushels were wheat.

The shipments of iron ore from the Lake Superior district for the navigation season is estimated at slightly more than 200,000 tons, about one-half the total shipment in 1930 and nearly two-thirds less the total shipments in 1925. The iron ore shipment from the Lake Superior district this season is the lowest since 1921. Steel men, however, anticipate a material increase in shipments next year, forecasts being made the total will be between 350,000 and 400,000 tons.

Coal receipts from eastern ports to the Head of the Lakes this season will not total much more than 800,000 tons, a decrease of more than 2,000,000 tons over previous seasons.

REPRESENTATIVE SAW JEFF DAVIS SWORN IN

Washington—(AP)—Taking Missouri as a representative for the month time Monday, is a man who 29 years ago saw Jefferson Davis inaugurated as the only president of the Confederacy.

He is Clement Cabell Dickinson, a Missouri democrat. As a 13-year-old boy he was a second sergeant in the Jeff Davis guards, detailed to defend railroad bridges against cavalry raids at night. He was in Richmond, in February, 1862, when Davis came to take office.

Except for being turned out by Republicans twice, he has been in the house since 1910. Now he's just back for the third time. Cairo, Egypt, has more daily newspapers than London.

MAKERS OF VICKS VAPORUB ANNOUNCE

A New Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"

Made Possible by New Product Based on New Idea for Prevention of Colds

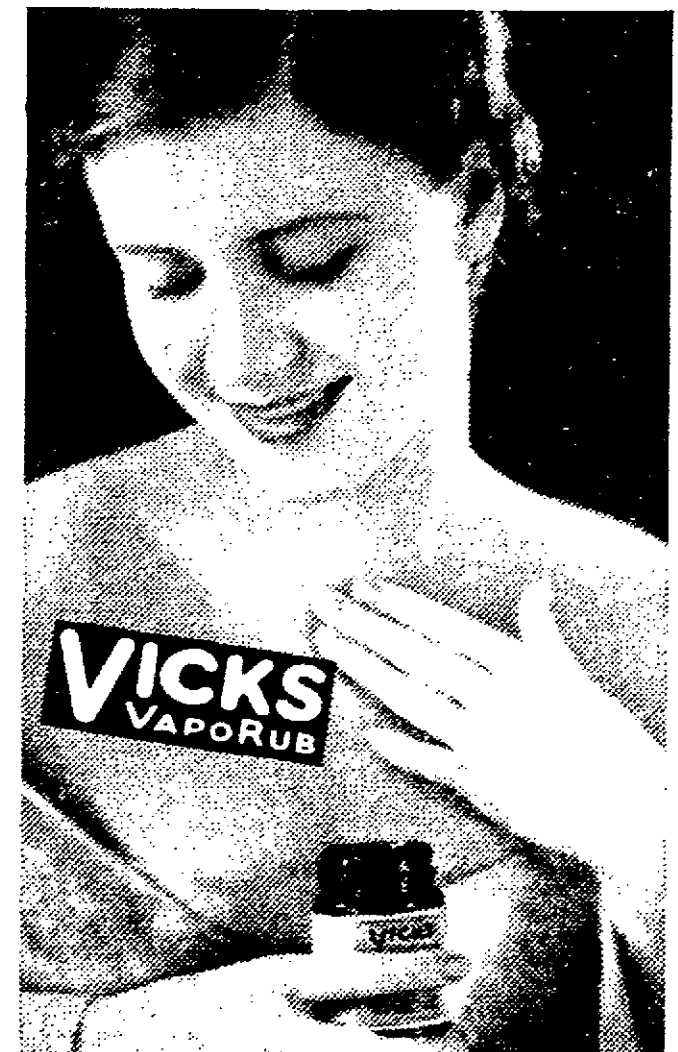

A third of a century ago, Lunsford Richardson, Sr., a North Carolina druggist, developed a new idea in treating colds—and with it Vicks VapoRub. Now, after years of research, Vicks chemists have developed a new idea in preventing colds—and with it Vicks Nose and Throat Drops. These two are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home.

Trial Offer to Vicks Users

We believe that these two products—used as directed in the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds"—will greatly reduce your family's "Colds-Tax" in money, loss of time and health. We believe this so strongly that we have authorized all druggists to sell Vicks Drops to any user of Vicks VapoRub on trial—to refund the purchase price if you do not find the Vicks Plan for "Control-of-Colds" more than satisfactory in your home.

HERE, BRIEFLY, IS THE NEW VICK PLAN:

1. Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneezy, scratchy irritation of the nose or upper throat—Nature's unmistakable warning that you are "catching cold"—use Vicks Nose Drops promptly as directed. Many colds can be checked at this stage and bad colds avoided.

If you catch cold easily, the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril after exposure to any particular condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a night on a Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking—over-heated, overcrowded rooms, etc., etc.—and you feel the slightest stuffiness of the nasal passages. Vicks Drops are especially designed to aid the nose—Nature's "preventor" of colds—when over-taxed by such emergencies of our artificial present-day living.

2. After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed-clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long. During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like another new Vicks product—a Cough Drop actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body strength at a time when Nature most needs it to resist disease. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

LENZ HAS 1,715 POINT LEAD IN BRIDGE BATTLE

Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson Lose Three Rubbers in First Contest

New York —(P)—Sidney S. Lenz and his partner Oswald Jacoby, playing the "official" system, were 1,715 points in the lead today in their 150-rubber contract bridge match against Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson and the Culbertson system.

Lenz and Jacoby made the greater score in each of three rubbers played in the initial session which lasted two hours and 45 minutes ending at 12:55 a. m. today. In each of the first two rubbers they won a bonus for taking two games. In the third rubber the Culbertsons took two games and with it a rubber bonus, yet because of the open hands, the point total of their opponents increased. Even after the Culbertsons themselves were perplexed, experts agreed that technically under the rules the winner of a rubber is the one with the greater score, regardless of who takes two games.

Each side remained convinced to-day that its system was the better. Culbertson said Lenz and Jacoby had "dreadnaughts" in card holdings and that if the cards were reversed the Culbertsons would have made more than 4,000 points. Lenz insisted that it he and Jacoby had played the Culbertsons' cards, the proponents of the "official system" would be plus just the same.

Twenty-three hands were played: first rubber, eight; second rubber, three; third rubber, twelve. At the end of the first rubber Lenz and Jacoby were 920 points in the lead. This plus score increased to 1,610 when the second rubber ended. The third rubber added 105 to the lead.

Lenz, who is the ace of his system and is acknowledged to be without a superior as a player, led the quarter in fulfilling contracts, five of them. Jacoby and Mrs. Culbertson "made it" three times each and Culbertson once.

Much argument developed over the second hand in which the Culbertsons contracted for five diamonds and Mrs. Culbertson was set four. The hand:

Lenz (North).

Mrs. Culbertson (West). (East, dealer)

C-K Q 9 8 7

Jacoby (South).
S-K Q 7 6 4
H-Q 7 6 4
D-J
C-J 10 9

The bidding ran: Mrs. Culbertson one diamond; Jacoby one spade; Culbertson two spades; Lenz pass; Mrs. Culbertson three diamonds; Jacoby pass; Culbertson three hearts; Lenz three spades; Mrs. Culbertson four hearts; Jacoby four spades; Culbertson five diamonds.

Lenz explained his failure to double by fear that the Culbertsons would revert to hearts, in which four could have been made, but suggested the Culbertsons could have gone little slam in clubs which they never bid. Lenz regarded Culbertson's overall in spades as a bit risky and Culbertson's re-bidding of diamonds as wholly unjustified. In answer to the two spade bid of her partner, Lenz thought, Mrs. Culbertson should have bid no trump, which might have resulted in bidding of the clubs by her partner.

Culbertson's followers regarded the fourth hand of the session as typical of the danger in the prediction of the "official" system for no trump. Lenz played it at a contract of four no trump and was set two. Culbertson's avowed they would have obtained a little slam in diamonds. They said the intermediary two bid of the "official" system was at fault.

New York—(CPA)—Down around Mannie Wolfe's east side steak and chop house they are grabbing newspapers eagerly today. Here's Tammany shoving in "Christy" Sullivan—Representative Christopher D. Sullivan, in Washington—to be chairman of the ways and means committee, one of the strategic moves by which Tammany hopes to make its bloc of 24 count heavily in congress.

Representative Sullivan is the last of the famous Bowery dynasty, and a cousin of the late Timothy D. (Big Tim) Sullivan, who also went to congress. He represents the most densely populated Jewish district in the world. Even when his racing stable turns out a selling plate like Nephys, the east side cheers the Sullivan white and green and swamps the bookmakers with bets—that's what the east side thinks of its Mr. Sullivan. He was first district leader and then state senator from 1908 to 1916. He retired to make room for Assemblyman Al Smith, and went to congress in 1917. He is quiet—no kind of an orator—but genial and companionable. On his Cousin Tim's knee he learned the simple, old fashioned Tammany technique of being good to poor people. He smokes more cigars than Al Smith, which means that he almost has to smoke in his sleep.

Lady Elsie de Wolfe Mendt left on the Bremen Saturday night, to go back to her Versailles salon, and leaves New York wide-eyed with wonder. Here is a woman who, in her early youth learned Aristotle's secrets that "happiness and longevity are to be found in the continuous exercise of beneficent energies." At 66, she retains the charm, grace, vitality and much of the beauty of her early years.

She was a New York debutante. Her stage career began in 1920, in Sardou's "Thermidor." She attained stardom as a member of the Empire State company, and later organized her own company, of which she was manager and star. Stage settings and lighting led her to an interest in interior decoration. She left the stage in 1903 and in 1905 established herself as an interior decorator. The New York Colony club, the New York Women's club, the Ogden Armour home at Lake Forest, Ill., the Crocker residence at Burlington, Cal., and the Harkness residence at Morristown are a few of the countless beautiful memorials to her genius. At 61, she was married, for the first time, to Sir Charles Mendt, British diplomat. The artistic world beats a pathway to her villa Trianon, near the gates of the Versailles palace.

Rig Senator Key Pittman in bear-skin chaps and silver spurs and he'll do nicely for a Metro-Goldwyn hero in one of the new westerns. The life story of the tall, slender, handsome Nevada senator, picked by the Democrats to be president pro tem of the senate, would make a pretty good thriller at that. A young Seattle lawyer, from Vicksburg, Miss., he went to the Klondike. Pay dirt eluded him and he formed a two-year partnership with a buck saw, at Dawson. The firm cashed enough cordage to get him to Nome. There they were trying to form a government, without much success. Young Mr. Pittman was the first district attorney, and his quiet recourse to "direct action," later led Rex Beach and Jack London to draw on him heavily in their tales of pioneering. He was in the gold fields and Tonopah at the start of the gold rush and helped establish the Tonopah Telephone company. He went to the senate in 1913. In 1928, he repudiated low tariffs and said the democrats would not stand for such a policy—a declaration which may become interesting in the forthcoming critical congressional session.

Bridge Pretty Serious Business For Experts

By Morris Watson
New York—(P)—Life was a deck of cards in a symphony of bridge etiquette last night as Ely Culbertson and Sidney S. Lenz went through the first jousts of their 150-rubber contract match to decide which of their respective systems is best for the bidder and who gets $5,000 or who gets $1,000, all according to who wins.

Mr. Lenz, the challenger, sank his chin into his vest and did some right smart playing to take "the first round with the aid of his partner, Oswald Jacoby.

Outside the arena where the big test was in progress the confusion was so general that experts with knitted brows got them tangled.

The match will continue tonight, with Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson bidding.

Practically the entire tenth floor of the fashionable hotel in which Mr. Culbertson has his apartment was given over to the occasion. Notwithstanding that, the Culbertsons were forced to engage the hotel's main dining room for a de luxe dinner to open hostilities. Twenty-eight guests—names that thrill any contract bridge enthusiast—partook and later retired to rubbers of their own.

Press Boys Play

There were also rubbers in the press room, where the players could smoke or comfortably smoke all the while club rules without breaking any formal agreements, and checkers in the telegraph rooms.

The Lenz-Culbertson battle began at 10:05 p.m. and ended at a few minutes before 1 o'clock. The players stood up well despite an evening of super hotting by photographers, movie men, well-meaning and just plain knowers.

Their court was nearly two hours behind the time agreed in the contract, and, to quote Chief Referee Alfred M. Gruenther, U. S. A., the play was not brilliant. Lieut. Gruenther believed that was as it should be, though. Considering the "hustle and bustle" of the evening.

Some fifteen minutes of discussion of rules, in which practically nothing was decided, preceded the first deal of the cards by Mr. Lenz. They concerned the right of the dummy to leave the room and the right of opponents to ask if any given bid was conventional or not conventional.

The latter was a Culbertson offer to the challenged and was nearly settled by Mr. Jacoby who suggested that no one was going to be "teacher enough to ask."

By that time the players dropped some of their formality and began calling each other Ely, Oswald, Sidney and Ju—but they remained of serious mien, and did no talking aside from their snappish-out bids.

Lenz Flustered

Mr. Lenz, who bridge players say would rather lose 100,000 points than drop one hand, became flustered when he was set two while vulnerable. So flustered, in fact, that he apologized first to Mrs. Culbertson, then to Ely Culbertson.

He finally overcame the fluster and directed the apology to Jacoby, a bit sheepish by that time.

"The best bridge players make mistakes," remarked Culbertson good naturedly.

The field of honor, across which the players shot their systematic bids and flustered the cards, was a sturdy, hardwood table, topped with green felt and bearing chromium corners in which were set ashtrays. The men were in dinner clothes. Mrs. Culbertson wore a simple black gown and corsage of orchids, a single strand of pearls. She was extremely tired after the play, but smiling. She had nothing to say at the end.

Culbertson spoke of his "valiant opponent," Lenz, a golfer, observed that the "greens were dry."

During a bit of burlesque before the big game Lenz, also a musician, discouraged Bruce Barton and a couple of other volunteer players by changing little spades into big ones.

Watch Veterans Bureau Rating Board on Aid Applications

Five members of Oney Johnson post of the American legion attended a service school at the National Soldiers home, Milwaukee, Sunday. They were Herbert H. Helble, post commander, William Denstedt, Arm-in-E. Schuerle, Edward Bass, and C. O. Baetz. The Appleton delegation was the largest from any one post outside of Milwaukee. There were about 150 veterans at the day's meetings.

James Burns, state service officer, presided. Veterans bureau administration heads from Milwaukee, Chicago and Washington, D. C. and state doctors and rating officials and board members also attended.

During the morning session the group watched the rating board consider applications for compensation, medical and hospital aid. At noon the visitors were entertained at dinner and a program. In the afternoon there was an inspection tour of the veterans' hospital.

RUMANIAN PRINCE TO RENOUNCE ROYALTY FOR BRIDE, REPORT

Vienna — (P)—Friends of Prince Nicholas of Rumania said he stood ready today to renounce the royal purple and to play a commoner's role in Fustian with Mme. Delet, his commoner bride.

The third section of the supreme court at Bucharest yesterday formally declared the marriage of the young prince and Mme. Delet "non-existent" and the declaration, it was reported here, forces upon him the necessity of renouncing his membership in the royal family or of abandoning his wife.

His friends said he already has drafted the declaration of renunciation to submit to the court, the king and all political parties, as King Carol had under similar circumstances when he was crown prince and the ways of his affections ran counter to ways of the king, their father.

The court's decision was interpreted as avoiding an announcement ceremony and leaving a means of escape for Carol, who was rumored over the marriage and threatened to expel Nicholas from the family. Carol's cabinet advisers hurried him to a move would not be popular with the country.

The prince's flight argued from the decision of the court instead of renouncing his royal standing, but his friends indicated that he intended to forego this possibility. It was not certain whether he will ask permission to remain in Rumania. A report that a military court had sentenced him to two months imprisonment was denied, however.

Milwaukee — (P)—The State Public Service commission, after a hearing Monday, took under advisement applications for permits involving changes in bus service in Manitowish and Two Rivers. The Wisconsin Public Service corporation, operating buses between the two cities, sought permission to discontinue such service because it is not profitable. Crocker Brothers, organized as the Safeway Motor Coach company and now operating a line between Manitowish and Appleton, asked permission to operate both buses and trucks on a line touching Appleton, Manitowish and Two Rivers, and to provide local passenger service in the latter two cities. City Manager E. J. Donnelly of Two Rivers, asked that bus service in his city be allowed.

MAJOR BILLS TO BE PASSED BY CONGRESS

Expert Opinion Expects U. S. to Be Beneficial as Result of Session

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—This is a day of predictions, fears and challenges. Predictions—because as congress meets nearly everybody outside of Washington expects plenty of turmoil and legislative confusion. Fears—because groups from those protected by the tariff down to those nervously awaiting the shock of tax increases are fearful.

Challenges—because the White House with a Republican incumbent is virtually challenging the Democrats who control the house of representatives to give an example of what they can do in the national interest in an emergency and under the pressure of responsibility.

To judge the new congress by traditional yardsticks is to ignore what has been going on inside the corridors of both the Republican and Democratic parties. The voters determined that this congress should respond quickly and effectively to the needs of that hour. There will be plenty of partisan politics but it will not interfere with the major items on the legislative program. Congress will enact a higher tax program. It will provide revenue raising measures to take care of the government's budget.

Will Enact Relief Plan

It will enact the program desired by the president for economic relief with such changes as the legislators feel are necessary—but the main principles will remain intact.

Congress will not attempt a revision of the tariff at this session. The Republicans don't want it and the Democrats prefer to go to the country in the 1932 elections with the privilege of pointing to the Smoot-Hawley law as the basic cause of all the ills suffered by a depressed nation.

Generally speaking, the so-called dole or unemployment relief issue will be secondary. The great financial aid by cities, counties and states together with private relief in preparation for the coming winter has diminished the chances of federal action. Academic controversy over how to prevent depressions and business cycles will be abundant but inconclusive. There will be much talk of less government in business and

MAJOR BILLS TO BE PASSED BY CONGRESS

Expert Opinion Expects U. S. to Be Beneficial as Result of Session

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—This is a day of predictions, fears and challenges. Predictions—because as congress meets nearly everybody outside of Washington expects plenty of turmoil and legislative confusion. Fears—because groups from those protected by the tariff down to those nervously awaiting the shock of tax increases are fearful.

Challenges—because the White House with a Republican incumbent is virtually challenging the Democrats who control the house of representatives to give an example of what they can do in the national interest in an emergency and under the pressure of responsibility.

To judge the new congress by traditional yardsticks is to ignore what has been going on inside the corridors of both the Republican and Democratic parties. The voters determined that this congress should respond quickly and effectively to the needs of that hour. There will be plenty of partisan politics but it will not interfere with the major items on the legislative program. Congress will enact a higher tax program. It will provide revenue raising measures to take care of the government's budget.

Will Enact Relief Plan

It will enact the program desired by the president for economic relief with such changes as the legislators feel are necessary—but the main principles will remain intact.

Congress will not attempt a revision of the tariff at this session. The Republicans don't want it and the Democrats prefer to go to the country in the 1932 elections with the privilege of pointing to the Smoot-Hawley law as the basic cause of all the ills suffered by a depressed nation.

Generally speaking, the so-called dole or unemployment relief issue will be secondary. The great financial aid by cities, counties and states together with private relief in preparation for the coming winter has diminished the chances of federal action. Academic controversy over how to prevent depressions and business cycles will be abundant but inconclusive. There will be much talk of less government in business and

Political Strategy

It is almost largely of letting other politicians sponsor legislation and the Republican and Democratic parties. The voters determined that this congress should respond quickly and effectively to the needs of that hour. There will be plenty of partisan politics but it will not interfere with the major items on the legislative program. Congress will enact a higher tax program. It will provide revenue raising measures to take care of the government's budget.

Academic controversy over how to prevent depressions and business cycles will be abundant but inconclusive. There will be much talk of less government in business and # less bureaucracy but these will remain as usual slogans for speeches rather than causes for definite action.

Controlled By Groups

For congress remains the creature of groups which look to the national government for continued aid and which combined can command a political power sufficient to swing a national election.

Congress will talk about prohibition but will not enact a single measure either to weaken the Volstead law or change the eighteenth amendment. For the comfort of the voters be it noted, however, that the present session will do more to advance the idea of a national referendum than any preceding session. There will be a chance for a record vote and after all this is what the dyes and wets will eventually benefit by for it will give them an opportunity to concentrate their fire on specific positions rather than vague generalities so often embraced by congressional candidates.

Congress and the president will be at loggerheads on nonconsequential issues and political questions but not on many matters of vital concern. Mr. Hoover has learned some valuable political lessons. He came into office unfamiliar with the ways of the national legislature. He now has become more and more acquainted with the technique of getting things legislative way.

As for radicalism, it is widely advertised but its bark is worse than its bite. If by radicalism is meant, desire for a complete revision of the capitalist system or matters akin to such revolutionary changes, there is virtually no sentiment in either house to support such doctrines. But there is a decided undercurrent of liberalism observably. It takes form in a better denunciation of banking and business leadership as responsible for the plight of seven millions or more unemployed.

It will be given expression in the debates of both houses, especially when financial and economic legislation is considered. It may even influence the restrictive measures that may be applied to prevent a recurrence of bank failures. It is for the moment only in an afterthought that it will grow somewhat visible as the session goes on. But the ultimate act of congress will be restrained, for the very good reason that no radical-liberalism nor conservatism is supported in appraisal of what has happened or is likely to happen in the next twelve months in the business upheaval that has swept the whole world.

ALUMNI TO MEET KAUKAUNA FIVE IN FIRST GAME

High School Team Opens Season Against Former Stars on Dec. 22

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school basketball team will open its schedule here Tuesday evening, Dec. 22, against a team composed of former Kaukauna high school alumni stars. Coach Paul E. Little has seven lettermen on the squad this year. With three of them six footers he hopes for a successful season in the Northwestern Wisconsin conference. His team last year had a record of 500 per cent in conference standings, and also in the district tournament at Neenah.

Opening the conference schedule with Clintonville as the opponent the lettermen meet two rivers on their own floor the following week. Kaukauna took a close win from Clintonville last year, staying a last minute rally. They also defeated two rivers in the second game of the season last year, losing the first to the lakesiders by a margin of a few points.

Lettermen returning to the squad this year are Jack Van Lieshout, Clarence Koch, Anthony Van Dyke, George Schwendeman, Donald Dia, Hoss Hewitt, and Arthur Sager. Dia, Schwendeman, and Sager are forwards. Farnell and Van Lieshout, guards, and Koch is a center. All played as regulars last season. Van Dyke has been unable to practice for a short time because of a recent operation for appendicitis.

Regular practices are being held following classes daily in the high school auditorium. Coach Little has cut his squad to 15 men and will cut to 10 men shortly after the new season is opened. The 10 men will remain on the squad for the remainder of the season.

You will pay for a Pines WINTERFRONT

whether you buy one or not

YES—you probably will pay several times the cost of this automatic radiator and motor protection, if you drive your car without a Pines Winterfront.

Your gas, oil, battery, and repair bills will be much larger if you try to economize by driving without this vital protection from cold. Here is what a Winterfront will do for you—figure out the savings for yourself.

1. Saves cylinder oil—by reducing your use of the choke which rapidly dilutes and destroys cylinder oil. Also prevents water condensing in crank case—another cause of oil dilution.
2. Saves gasoline—by keeping your motor running at the proper temperature and by saving gas used in excessive choking.
3. Saves battery—by greatly reducing the stalling of your motor during the warming up period.
4. Saves costly repairs—by preventing scoring of pistons and cylinders caused by washing away the film of protecting oil when choke is used.

Double protection—the only safe method

The Pines Winterfront covers the radiator completely. It keeps the heat generated by your motor—protects both the radiator and the motor from cold blasts. Makes the motor warm up quicker. Stops drafts. Makes your water heater work better. Keeps your motor running at a safe temperature. Winterfront protection is complete protection.

Car heaters will not work properly without the Winterfront

If your car is equipped with a heater, the radiator must be protected before your heater will function properly. The Winterfront stops cold drafts and makes the radiator water heat up faster.

Installed in 10 minutes

No one who drives a car in cold weather can afford to be without Winterfront protection. Drive your car to any Pines service station. Examine a Winterfront. Then have it installed on your car in 10 minutes. Drive away certain that both your radiator and motor are completely protected from cold.

GIVE SUPPORT TO RAILROADS. OFFICIAL ASKS

Otherwise They Will Cease to Operate, He Tells Rotary Club

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—The present conditions of the railroad and a comparison with the past, together with a plea for support from New London citizens, was the basis of a talk by John Leppa, Antigo, division manager of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad at the Rotary club luncheon at Elwood hotel yesterday.

The speaker touched briefly upon the history of the line between this city and Appleton, stating that it was originally chartered in 1866, and in 1872 was sold to the Chicago and Northwestern company, which purchased it under a mortgage foreclosure in September, 1893.

An appeal for local support of the railroad in preference to the use of trucks followed. Large trucking companies are of benefit, the speaker said, only to large cities, and portions of these concerns result in smaller cities, especially in smaller cities, special charges made are taken out of the towns. On the other hand, Mr. Leppa pointed out that the more business accumulated by railroads the more the railroads are able to pay in salaries and wages to employees who remain in the city.

The speaker showed that in 1929 the passenger income of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad was $7 million dollars as compared to $3 million in 1930. Decrease in freight income was still more alarming, the speaker pointed out, being lowered $5 million dollars in the period between 1921 and 1929.

Mr. Leppa complimented New London business men on their standstill of the last season, which shows the lowest decrease in income of any station on the line. The net income in 1931 for New London was only $10,000 less than in 1930, the speaker said, while at Hortonville the loss for the same period was $26,000. Mr. Leppa expressed extreme pessimism for the future of railroads, saying that the companies of the future must continue to bear the losses of the past.

That the choice of the people and the quality of their support will determine this future also was stated by Mr. Leppa. He said that unless the railroads as an institution are supported they will cease to operate.

VOLUNTEERS TO CLEAR AREA IN "THE PINES"

Special to Post-Crescent

New London—An all-day "bee" to clean out the hospital property known as "The Pines" has been planned for Wednesday. This tract, located adjacent to the hospital grounds, consists of fine pine trees which eventually will be turned into a park where many of the affairs connected with the hospital may be held. Following the instructions of a landscape artist from the state university, the area is to be cut unless absolutely necessary. The present plan is merely to clear sufficient space for the erection of an open air band stand.

The sisters at the hospital will serve a dinner to all workers at the hospital. It is expected that the entire hospital property may be landscaped next year. Plans for this work will be forwarded to the hospital at an early date.

The Woman's club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Tesch Monday afternoon. The program consisted of a talk by Miss Florence Hooley, county nurse, and a review of the life of Dr. Florence Rene Sabin by Edmund Boll. Miss Hooley talked on the work which she had done since coming to this county a year ago, and its importance to the people. She stated that much good is expected to result from the dental survey recently completed of the school children of the county. She said the greatest benefits will come to the next generation, which will profit by the things which the young people are now learning concerning sanitation, properly balanced food, and the general care of the body. Miss Hooley compared the ten chief causes of death in Calumet during 1929 with those of the state of Wisconsin during the same period. In the state tuberculosis led the list, with an average of 22.56. Next in order came pericardial state, 12.5 per cent; heart disease, 9.8 per cent; cancer, 7.6 per cent; pneumonia, 4.6 per cent; accidents, 3.4 per cent; nephritis, 4.3 per cent; influenza, 4.3 per cent; appendicitis, 2.9 per cent; diseases of the thyroid, 2.6 per cent.

In Calumet the largest number of deaths during this period was from heart disease, 21.6 per cent; this was accounted for by the fact that the average span of life in the county is longer than the average in the state, and heart disease is one of the diseases of age; next came cerebral hemorrhage, 11.4 per cent; influenza, 7.4 per cent; chronic nephritis, 7.4 per cent; diseases of early infancy, 7.4 per cent; tuberculosis, 6.7 per cent; pneumonia, 6.7 per cent; cancer, 6 per cent; diabetes, 2 per cent; drowning, 2 per cent; appendicitis, 1.4 per cent; and other two per cent.

Mrs. Herman J. Jorgensen and Mrs. Milton Jones of New Holstein, members of the Civic club of that city, were guests of the club. The next meeting of the club, Dec. 21, will be at the home of Mrs. H. R. Arps.

She wound up, smashing the other thug on the "button" with a right cross, and he crashed through a window into the yard below. His companion fled.

Athletic Council, U. W. Regents Delve Into Sports Situation

ASSEMBLY ASKS INVESTIGATION INTO FINANCES

Vote Taken by Newspapers Shows Madison Split Over Coach Question

MADISON—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin athletic department finances and personnel will come under the scrutiny of the athletic council and the physical education committee of the board of regents tomorrow night.

Last Wednesday the two bodies met in joint session for six hours only to announce that no action had been taken relative to Glenn Thistlethwaite, head football coach. The council and committee spent most of the time on the financial crisis.

George Little, director of athletics, carried out some of the suggestions made by the council and committee when he attended the Western conference meeting at Chicago last weekend and carried short schedules in an effort to save money. Every avenue is being explored in an attempt to find ways and means of cutting down the $76,000 deficit in the athletic department.

While the council and the regents were going about their task of weeding out non-essentials in the athletic program the state legislature was taking cognizance of the situation. The assembly adopted, without debate, a resolution calling for a legislative investigation of finances in the university athletic department. Senate approval of the resolution has yet to come.

Meanwhile, two local newspapers were attempting to settle the question of retaining or discharging Coach Thistlethwaite by having readers vote on the issue. One newspaper reported a preponderance of ballots favored a new coach and the poll conducted by the Daily Cardinal, student newspaper, showed a majority of six votes in favor of the dismissal of the coach. The Cardinal refused to take this result at its face value, however, pointing out that several ballots looked like duplicates and should not be considered.

Newspaper readers have suggested the following as coaches: Tom Lieb, of Loyola (California) and former line coach at Wisconsin; Charles Dorais of the University of Detroit; Glenn Warner of Stanford; Curley Lambreau of the Green Bay Packers; Clarence "Doc" Spears of Oregon, and Andy Kerr of Colgate.

And while the balloting for a new coach went on, several readers suggested a new director of athletics. Names proposed were Walter E. Alexander of the University basketball squad as a successor to Director Little.

EASTERN GRIDDERS IN CHARITY GAME

Penn., Cornell, Princeton, Columbia Play in New York Tomorrow

New York—(AP)—Granting favorable weather conditions, the Penn-Cornell-Princeton-Columbia elimination tournament in the Yankee Stadium tomorrow probably will add about $50,000 to the half million dollars football already has earned for the unemployeds.

A similar tournament which drew 30,000 persons to the Yale bowl last week earned $40,000 for the unemployeds.

Pairings for the two preliminary games will not be made until a half hour before the tournament starts at 1 p. m.

All told, the president's committee on mobilization of unemployment relief expects football to have earned $1,000,000 for charity by the end of the week. This figure is based upon the expectation of a "gate" of $400,000 or more at the Army-Navy classic in the Yankee Stadium Saturday.

Al Singer, Battalino In Feather Title Bout

BY WILBUR WOOD Copyright, 1931

NEW YORK—(CFA)—One of the finest compliments that could be paid Christopher (Bat) Battalino is that Al Singer, though willing to go 15 rounds with Kid Chocolate would not consider more than ten as the distance with Battalino as his opponent. After a great deal of conversation, Singer had his way and his brawl with the featherweight champion Friday night is set down for ten rounds.

Chocolate really came very close to dethroning Tony Canzoneri as lightweight king. Yet Singer was willing to step 15 with the Keed. Battalino is only a featherweight and Singer is a lightweight, but Al just couldn't see his way clear to going 15 with the Hartford demon.

Those who know the Queensberry ropes will agree that Singer used good judgment. Al has had very little work during the last year and even ten with Battalino may be more than enough from Al's viewpoint.

Chocolate is a boxer who fights in spurts and no doubt Singer figured he could get through 15 frames with the Keed well enough by easing up when he eased up and spurring when he spurred.

That sort of thing doesn't go when Battalino is in the ring. The Bat has one style and that is to start punching at the opening bell and never stop until it is all over. That makes him extremely bad medicine for fellows who like to coast a bit now and then by mutual consent.

Battalino might escape some bumps if he would ease up now and then, but it isn't in him to do that. He seems to revel in rough going. Just a trifle less than a year ago the Bat risked his title against Chocolate. The Keed knocked him down and gave him a thorough pasting in the first round. That did not bother the Hartford demon in the least. He just kept coming in for more and though outclassed as a boxer and puncher he managed to grab the verdict. Battalino wins the hard way, but he wins.

As expected, the boxing commission yesterday approved Battalino as a substitute for Chocolate, who has not himself entangled in the coils of the law. Though sanctioning the match the fight fathers wished it to be understood that they still were opposed to champions engaging in over-weight matches, except in such particular cases as this one. Certainly the board had no logical excuse for saying no in this case, as Battalino has risked his title five times during the last twelve months.

Sports Question Box

Q.—Is it true that major leagues now have the right to take college players as against the minor leagues?
A.—Under the new national agreement the college field is closed against the minor leagues.

Q.—Is road work harmful to an amateur boxer? Does it do any good?
A.—Depends on how much is done and whether or not one really needs hardening. Roadwork in moderation helps the wind and builds stamina and endurance.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

COMPARATIVE scores take an awful licking when Kentucky and Tennessee get together on the griffon. . . . Operative Brownie Leach of Lexington points out that on four occasions Kentucky has knocked the Tennessee eleven out of a claim to the Southern Conference championship. . . . and each time by a tie game on the closing day of the season. . . . In 1915 and 1923 it was 0 to 0. . . . and in 1929 and 1931 it was 6 to 6. . . . Coach Neyland has been at Tennessee six years and has brought three teams up to the last game of the year (against Kentucky) untied and undefeated. . . . only to be smeared by the Wildcats. . . . Tennessee beat Alabama this year 25 to 0 and licked Duke 25 to 3. . . . while Kentucky lost to Alabama 9 to 7 and to Duke 7 to 0. . . . Alabama has made a habit of beating Kentucky since 1922. . . . but Tennessee, which seldom experiences any trouble in disposing of the Crimson Tide, catches cat fits trying to calm Kentucky.

RECORD CROWD TO SEE CHARITY BOUTS

Rasmussen - Drake. Cotter-Ahl Fights Expected to Be Sensational

THE CARD
Hank Rasmussen, Appleton vs. Lyle Drake, Watertown.
Harold Cotter, Kaukauna vs. Hans Ahl, Oshkosh.
Leo Champagne, De Pere vs. Bob Worthington, Fond du Lac.
Luke Ebel, Manitowish vs. Art Van Ess, Green Bay.
Art West, Appleton vs. Bobby Brown, Waubesa.
Sparky Ahl, Oshkosh, vs. Chuck Chenevick, Manitowish.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend an amateur fight card at Armory G is expected to crowd its way into the Armory tonight when Onzy Johnston post of the American Legion does its bit for charity. The net proceeds of the card will be given by the legion to Appleton charity.

All the bouts on the card appeal to popular imagination. The Harold Cotter-Hans Ahl return go has stirred up more than a little interest because of the sensational bout several weeks ago when Ahl knocked Cotter stiff in the third round after the Kaukauna veteran had piled up a neat margin of points.

Hank Rasmussen and Lyle Drake also are two new names to appeal to local fans. The newcomers to boxing both are clever and can box hard. In their last appearances here, Drake won by a technical K. O.

Another slugfest match that may go so far as to steal the whole show is the Art Van Ess-Luke Ebel fight. Both boys possess a ton of dynamite in their mitts and when they land you can hear the floor blocks away. And needless to say both like to mix.

The fights will start at 8:30 as usual. Judge Fred V. Henneman will be announcer and Walter Huchman probably will be the third man in the ring.

OHIO STATE CAGERS OPEN WITH OHIO U.

Chicago—(AP)—Ohio State's veteran basketball squad, one of the pre-season dark horses in the Western conference, will open its practice tonight against Ohio University.

The Buckeyes have last year's team intact, except for Lew Hitchman, who has decided not to play basketball this season.

Northwestern, the Big Ten defending champion, easily defeated Bradley college last night, 25 to 10, in its opening game. Joe Roff, forward and the leading scorer of the Big Ten last season, and Elmer Johnson, six-foot, three inch center, led the Wildcats with five field goals.

Michigan also got underway with a victory, defeating Western State Teachers, Kalamazoo, Mich., 23 to 17.

MARVIL, RUSSELL WILL PLAY IN SHRINE GAME

Chicago—(AP)—Dallas Marvil, Northwestern's all-America tackle, and Red Russell, Wildcat fullback, until he suffered injuries in the opening game of the season, will be members of the east squad in the annual East-West Shrine benefit football game at San Francisco New Year's day.

Charles "Ookie" Miller, center, and Jim Forde, halfback, Purdue stars, also have accepted Coach Dick Harbo's invitation to join the squad, and Bill Hewitt, Michigan's combination end/fullback.

GRID TEAMS SET NEW LOW SCORING RECORD

New York—(AP)—Despite recent rule changes designed to aid football's attack, the lowest scoring record in ten years was established during the last season.

An Associated Press compilation for the 1931 campaign reveals that 155 representative teams played 1,274 games and scored a total of 10,445 points. The resulting team average of 124.7 points for the season and 14.16 points per game compared with 137 and 16 respectively for 122 teams a year ago.

The 1930 figures were the highest and the 1931 averages the lowest since 1923 when the Associated Press first kept such statistics.

The individual leader this year, Davis & Elkins College of Elkins, W. Va., scored 345 points as against 332 for Colgate, the 1930 leader.

Coach Blames DE-EMPHASIZING FOR GRID HURTS

New York—(AP)—Some portion of the responsibility for the 46 deaths from football this year must be ascribed to the process of de-emphasizing the game, in the opinion of John V. (Chick) Michon of New York University, president of the American Football Coaches' association.

"Elimination of spring practice in some schools, late starting in others, in fact, all this de-emphasizing of football, have contributed largely to the accidents this fall," he says.

"Football is a hard, rugged game. There can be no such thing as too much care, too much attention, too much emphasis in preparing boys for it."

Army Gridders Again Are Favored To Beat The Navy

BY HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK—(AP)—If the law of averages has anything to do with football, it should be operating overtime for Navy when the Tars clash with the Army in their charity classic at the Yankee Stadium Saturday.

It has been 11 long years since Navy has beaten her military football rival and the law of averages to the contrary notwithstanding, the "dope" favors Army once more.

How to Go Crazy

Figures, of course, do not lie—much. And it was on the basis of figures that we had been thinking Southern California would beat Tulane. It seems, however, that Tulane is exactly 10 points better than the Trojans.

Here's how it works:
Tulane beat Vanderbilt by 19 points. Vanderbilt defeated Ohio State by 5 points. Ohio State bested Michigan by 13 points. Michigan outdid Wisconsin by 16 points. Wisconsin was 7 points better than Purdue and Purdue was that many points better than Northwestern. Northwestern beat the University of California at Los Angeles by 19 points. U. C. L. A. beat St. Mary's by 12 points. Now then, St. Mary's defeated the University of Southern California by 6 points. Add them up and you get 104 points.

Okay, now that's settled.
Whoa!
But wait! How is that settled? Southern California really ought to beat Tulane, 171 to 6. Certainly! Funny we didn't think of that sooner. And, as a couple of Carolina governors were wont to say, here's how:

Southern California beat Oregon by 53 points. Oregon beat U. C. L. A. by 7 points. U. C. L. A. beat Florida by 13 points. Florida actually defeated North Carolina State 34 to 9. North Carolina State amazed the grid world by beating Duke by 14 points. And Duke, not to be outdone, beat Kentucky by 7 points.

Well, Kentucky turned right around and played the vaunted Tennessee Vols. In the game, Tennessee beat Alabama by 25 points. Alabama beat Mississippi by 9 points. If you add that up correctly, you get the indisputable fact that Southern California is 202 points better than Mississippi, and it's just as well that Mississippi isn't playing in the Rose Bowl this year, for that certainly would be one big afternoon.

Let's See Now

But Tulane was only 31 points better than that same Mississippi team. I guess you take 31 away from 104 and the result gives you Southern California's margin over Tulane—a scant 73 points.

Now, let's see what we have here. Tulane should shake Southern California by 104 points and Southern California ought to nose out Tulane, 71 to 9. There's something a bit wrong with the figures somewhere. I wonder where that mistake comes in—let's see now, 104 plus 104 is 208 minus 19 is 189 plus 189 is 378 minus 19 is 359—Where's that other sheet of paper?

KIMBERLY HIGHS WIN FROM PULASKI, 26-14

Kimberly—Coach Happers' basketball squad surprised the local followers and the coach himself when they pulled back up basket ball to win their conference game from Pulaski, 26 to 14, last night.

The Kimberly team held the lead throughout the game and with its back passing seemed to throw the Pulaski's defense off and scored at ease.

This week the cagers will be out in evening practice sessions in preparation for this week's game with Shiloh at Kimberly Friday. Most of the work this week has been on improving the Red Devil defense.

Appleton team with a 500 series. E. back had 54 and B. Verney a 525. Another match game on Elk. The boys saw the Hendy Recreationers lose the match and two games to Red's Place Rogers. P. Schmidt led the Appleton team in the assault on the maples with a 211, 242, 191—503. E. Wegner had a 525 and R. Lessel-vong 523. For the Recreationers G. Raleigh showed the best total, 203, 201, 181—585.

Both won two games from the Williams in the Riverside Paper League. Williams copied the first contest and then dropped the last two as E. Davis rolled 163 and C. Parsons 184. B. Murray had a 456 series for the losers.

Mimosa sneaked a single game win over the Bristles, copying the first round when E. Schumacher rolled a 24. In the second game E. Williams hit a 214 for the Bristles and the team won easily. E. Harth's 143 was high in the third game and gave the Bristles the victory.

The other game saw the Lodgers take two from the Best Cards. L. Zumach showed a 164 in the first game for the Best cards but his team lost because of the 115 to 63 handicap. In the second game Brock had a 173 but again the Lodgers won. The final game went to the Cards when Zumach hit 179 and Desart 151.

ST. JOHN QUINTET BEATS OSHKOSH FIVE

Little Chute—The St. John quintet opened schedule with a 17-10 win over St. Mary's of Oshkosh. The game showed splendid defense. The local squad led 11-4 at the half and added six to this while Oshkosh added 7 to its score. Hammen and Kromer starred for St. John while Pettenger, De Young and Fenchel held the honors for St. Mary's.

Coach Miron carried a squad of eleven men and all saw action during the contest.

Chapter 1

A STRANGER RETURNS

THE dusty overland train pulled into Wagonstone about noon of a sultry dead station afternoon. The train was a long one, and the passengers were a motley crowd. The train was a long one, and the passengers were a motley crowd. The train was a long one, and the passengers were a motley crowd.

How's my old friend, Cass Seward?

"Hah—Wal, you needn't be curious about Cass lookin' for you. He's been dadd these two years. He was a real sheriff, Rock, an' a good friend of yours."

"Well, I'm not so sure of that last, but Cass was a good fellow all right. Dead? I'm sure sorry. What ailed him, Bill?"

"Nothin'." He cashed with his boots on.

"Who killed him?"

"Wal, that was never cleared up for shore. The talk has always been that Ash Preston killed Seward. But nobody's heard of all our new sheriff, ever tried to prove it."

"Who's Ash Preston?"

"He's the oldest son of Gage Preston, a new cattleman to these parts since you rode here. An' Ash is as bad a hound as ever forked a boss."

"Bad? What you mean Bill?"

"Wal, I leave it to you. I ain't sayin' any more, an' please regard that as of no consequence."

"Certainly," Bill replied. Rock, hastily, after some casual conversation about the range they parted in the hotel lobby.

Rock recalled friends and enemies of the old Wagonstone days. One of his best friends had been Sol Winter, a kindly storekeeper who always overrated a service Rock had rendered. Whenever Rock got into a scrape, provided it was not a shooting one, Sol was the one who helped him out of it. Sol had always been his bank. Rock might have needed a debt still unpaid. He sailed out to find Winter's store.

It should have been a couple of blocks down the street. Finally he located the corner where Sol's place of business had been. A large and pretentious store now occupied this site. Rock experienced keen pleasure at the evidence of his old friend's prosperity, and he stalked gaily in the sure of a warm welcome. But he was only to learn that Sol Winter did not occupy this store.

"Ah!—Is Winter still in business?" inquired Rock, conscious of disappointment.

"After a fashion. He has been sort of run out of the best part of town."

"Run out? How?" sharply returned Rock.

"Better store and stock took his trade. If you want anything you'd better go to the new place."

"Thanks. I don't want anything," interrupted Rock, and departed.

Through inquiry, he located Sol Winter's store at the end of the street. It was by no means a small or cheap place, but it was not what it had once been. Rock entered. Sol was waiting upon a woman. He looked older, thinner, grayer, and there were deep lines in his face that seemed strange to Rock. Six years was a long time.

"What's the matter, Cass? I do for you?" inquired a voice at Rock's elbow. He turned to find Winter's face.

"Howdy, Sol. Old-timer?" said Rock, with a warm leap of his pulse. "Don't you know me?"

"True Rock!" he shouted, inwardly.

Winter seized him with aged hands. "If it ain't really you! Why, you old rascal, didn't you know, my love-makin' son, Cass? You're the same old Cass, I see."

"Glad to see you, Sol," returned Rock, frowning under Winter's gaze. "Glad—Lord, there ain't words to tell you. Why, true, you were always like my own boy. An' since I lost him—"

"Lost him?—What? You never had any boy but Nick. What you mean?"

"Didn't you ever hear about Nick?"

"No. I've never heard any news from Wagonstone since I left," returned Rock, frowning himself.

"Nick was shot off his horse out near Sunset Pass."

"Aw—no! Sol—Nick shot? Aw, say he wasn't killed!"

"Yes, he was, True," replied Winter, sadly.

"My God! I'm sorry," exclaimed Rock. "But it was an accident?"

"So they say, but I never believed it. There's still bad blood on the range, True. You must remember. In fact there's some new bad blood come in since you left."

Rock catches up on local gossip, tomorrow, and meets an unusual girl.

MORE LAWS ARE ASKED TO HELP U. S. FARMERS

Farm Bureau Federation Chief Demands "Equality With Other Industries"

Chicago—(P)—Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, opened the thirteenth annual national convention Monday by demanding for agriculture more federal regulation for grain and cotton exchanges, true equality with other industries, an improved market act, less taxes, and more credit.

"In formulating our program we must make it militant," he declared. "Let's more completely organize agriculture; strengthen and coordinate our service organizations, to get greater collective bargaining power; strengthen and perfect our market system, that the American farmer may have the benefit of the tariff."

"Let us adopt a permanent, long time national land policy; secure a better financial system for agriculture; an honest dollar for the nation; provide a more equitable tax system and a fairer representation of agriculture in all government agencies; and a coordination of all agricultural forces in a common program."

"To carry out that program we must have a huge array of men and women throughout the nation. The only voice that is heard in the nation today is the voice of organization. We must be aroused and organized. It is our only salvation."

Want More Power

President O'Neal said the only ones opposed to the farm board were those previously in "undisputed control of the marketing system and who have profited greatly thereby." While complimenting the work done by the board, O'Neal said "we insist that the marketing act should and must be amended by congress which almost at this minute is being called to order. We insist that this congress give the federal farm board authority to charge all units of any given commodity, moving in the channels of trade, their proportionate shares of all necessary natural costs and losses resulting from the control of crop surpluses."

He said the federation was against the present system of corn and grain exchanges because, without regulation, "a small group have profited by market manipulations for many years."

As to the cry of "get the government out of business" in connection with agriculture, he said, "American agriculture is perfectly willing to get the government out of business if it gets out of business for everybody."

The equalization fee, he continued, "will in fact definitely take the government out of business. The cost of the marketing program utilizing the equalization fee will be borne by the farmer himself and not by the government."

The present administrators of the farm loan association, he said, needed to be changed because they were unsympathetic with rural needs and ideals. He also proposed relief of the taxation burden on lands withdrawn from production and reductions or rescinding of taxes on legume lands, also a broad soil-erosion control program.

CAR RUNS TOO WELL, DRIVER DISCOVERS HE TOOK WRONG ONE

Kenosha—(P)—Except for the fact it ran too well, Charles A. Luckfield, Racine, might still be innocently operating another man's automobile without the owner's consent.

Luckfield drove half way from Kenosha to Racine Sunday before he discovered he was driving a strange car. He turned back and found he had taken the car parked ahead of his own by mistake.

Hurrying to the police station, Luckfield arrived while Charles Mowry was making a report of his car being stolen. An apology settled the matter.

JEWISH PEOPLE OBSERVE FEAST HERE THIS WEEK

Festival, Opening Last Friday, to Continue Until Next Saturday

Jewish people of Appleton are this week observing Hanukkah, or the Feast of Dedication, or the Feast of Lights. The festival, which opened Friday evening and will continue until Saturday, commemorates the recovery, centuries ago, of their faith after five years during which they were forced to yield in large measure to apostasy and to worship Zeus, the chief of the Olympian gods.

The Reformed congregation will celebrate Hanukkah Friday evening at the temple, with a festival for children. The Sunday school children will present a one-act play written by Miss Beatrice Segal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Segal. The play is a modern version of the feast of lights.

The charity dancing party sponsored by the Ladies Aid of Moses Montefiore congregation at the Conway hotel Sunday evening also celebrated the Feast of Lights.

During the festival period candles are lighted in Jewish homes, one more on each successive day until the eighth day period is ended. Hanukkah is ordained to quicken the love for religious freedom and to strengthen the historical consciousness of a people against bigotry and intolerance.

Palestine became a part of Syria, whose king in 170 B. C. E. was Antiochus Epiphanes. Maddened by the passion to see Hellenism replace Judaism, Antiochus gave the Jews the choice between death and conversion to his faith. Some Jews, fearing the consequences of remaining true to the religion of the fathers, yielded, while thousands preferred the fate of martyrs.

The temple in Jerusalem was entered by the enemy and the image of Antiochus was set up in its sacred precincts. Against the Syrian hosts were the followers of the Hasmonian family of Mattathias and his sons, who led a valiant attack and finally drove out the enemy.

In the year 165 B. C. E., the temple in Jerusalem was restored to its former worship and the ceremony of rededication took place. It lasted for eight days.

WOULD PROHIBIT SALE OF BUTTER SUBSTITUTES

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Rep. Michael D. Reilly of Fond du Lac Monday introduced his bill to prevent the use of oleomargarine and other butter substitutes in any federal institution.

Under present law, use of such butter substitutes is prohibited only in veterans' hospitals and national soldiers' homes, under an amendment to the appropriation bill for the veterans' administration adopted last year.

The Reilly bill would prohibit the use of butter substitutes in the army and navy hospitals, as well as the veterans' hospitals, and all other institutions maintained by the federal government or under contract with the federal government.

Rep. Reilly also introduced a bill providing pensions for all widows of veterans of the world war. Under present law, only the widows of veterans who were killed in the service or who died of disabilities incurred in the service get pensions. The pensions for the other widows would be the same as for those provided under present law.

STOCK MARKET COMES CLOSE TO LOW OF OCTOBER

Plight of Railroads Not Encouraging, Expert Points Out

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

Copyright 1931, By Cons. Press

Wall Street, New York—(CPA)—

Current discussion in Wall Street speculative circles last week centered itself more with the technical position of the market than any news events that might effect prices. Two questions are continuously asked in brokerage offices, first the extent of the short interest and second the chances of the market breaking decisively through the October lows.

The stock exchange publishes statistics on the short account once a month. The compilation was begun in May of this year, on the 25th day of which month 5,589,700 shares were outstanding, as short commitments. This was the peak to date. The low point was 2,307,553 shares on Oct. 7 which is the last day for which an official statement is available.

From Oct. 7 to the present only unofficial estimates can be given and they must be taken with reserve. However, it has been calculated that at the beginning of the week the short account ran close to 4,000,000 shares and at the end of the week it had been reduced to about 2,500,000.

If these estimates are anywhere near correct, they show that large scale covering went on this week and that the technical position has been improved to that amount. Even so, if there are 2,500,000 short shares out there is a substantial cushion under the market still.

Near October Low

As to the second point, the movement of the average at the close on Friday, there was a scant margin of safety over and above the October minimums. The sudden weakness in the afternoon of that day carried prices down seriously close to the critical level. The Dow Jones Industrial low on Oct. 5 was $6.48 and the low for the utilities was $4.88.

At the close on Friday the industrials stood at $6.76 and the utilities at $5.46. The standard statistics index of 90 stocks including industrials, rails and utilities stood at 71.5 against the Oct. 5 low of 70.

Wall Street regards these averages with almost superstitious awe. The theory is that once the old low is broken the major decline is automatically resumed. If, however, support appears before that point is reached recovery is in order. It is unnecessary to accept these conclusions implicitly. Nevertheless because faith in their prophetic character is so wide spread a decline in the averages under the former lows would affect the trading element.

The stock market had much with which to contend last week. In the first place there was the Wabash receivership, a striking reminder of the plight of the railroads. This was followed by acute weakness in railway bonds which had the most severe break for one session on record. Finally came the pessimistic reports from abroad. The surprising thing is that the stock market held as well as it did.

OFF AND ON AGAIN

Milwaukee—One of the Milwaukee railroad's largest locomotives was derailed here when it attempted to switch around a freight derailed. All of the engine's driving wheels left the rails and were near sliding off a turntable. While another engine was on the way to help it back on the tracks, the engineer of the derailed locomotive took a chance. He spun the wheels of the huge steel and it sprang back on the rails.

Had Hard Red Pimples. Ashamed to Be Seen. Cuticura Healed.

"My shoulders, back, arms and face were affected with pimples. They were hard and red and later became very large and sore and festered. They itched and I used to scratch them until they would bleed. I was ashamed to be seen because they looked so badly, and I lost sleep at night. My clothing aggravated them."

"I used a number of other remedies but none of them seemed to help me. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in three weeks I began to experience results, and in about a month I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Regina Kuczewski, R. 3, Box 1246, Detroit, Mich.
